

HAWKINS' DEATH

The Body of the Dead Officer Brought Ashore Today.

FITTING CEREMONIES HELD.

Remains to Be Started Home to His Native State.

DIED ABOARD SHIP ON JULY 18.

The Cause of His Death Reported to Have Been Due to Cancer of the Bowels—His Illness Dated From the Battle of Malolos, When He Exposed Himself Almost Recklessly in the Disease-Breeding Climate—Impressive Funeral Services Followed, Conducted by the Regimental Chaplain, the Following Sunday—Remains Attended by a Guard of Honor For the Rest of the Voyage. Few Cases of Seasickness and Half a Dozen Cases of Dysentery Among the Men Aboard the Transport—One Man Will Be Operated on For Appendicitis.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 2.—The casket containing the remains of Colonel Hawkins was taken ashore today with ceremonies befitting Colonel Hawkins' rank. The remains of the dead commander will be sent to Pennsylvania for interment. Colonel Hawkins died on July 18, on board of the transport Senator enroute to this city with his regiment from Manila. His death occurred two days after the transport sailed from Yokohama. Cancer of the bowels was the cause of death. The remains were embalmed on board the ship and brought here for shipment to Pennsylvania. The ship bearing the regiment has arrived, bringing the sad news.

Flag at Half-Mast.

The Senator arrived with her flag at halfmast on account of the death of Colonel Hawkins.

The Senator sailed from Manila on July 1, with 38 officers and 721 enlisted men. The transport was at Nagasaki on July 15, when Colonel Hawkins was taken ill with cancer of the bowels, from which he had been a sufferer during the greater part of his campaign in the Philippines, and for which he had undergone treatment in the military hospital at Manila. His illness continued during the following day, July 16, when the Senator was at Yokohama, and two days later he passed away at sea.

Colonel Hawkins' illness dated from the battle of Malolos, when he exposed himself almost recklessly in the disease-breeding climate. He was respected and loved by every man of his command, and his death is deeply mourned by the troops. His body was placed in a hermetically sealed casket, and on the Sunday following his death impressive funeral services were conducted by the chaplain of the regiment, all of his men being in attendance.

The remains were placed in the stern of the vessel and lay in state, attended day and night by a guard of honor during the remainder of the voyage.

After the death of Colonel Hawkins, the command of the regiment was vested in Lieutenant Colonel Barnett, who, like the dead commander, is popular among the enlisted men, and made a good record in the war.

Of the 759 officers and men whom Colonel Barnett brought to San Francisco, three are privates in the Sixth artillery, U. S. A., and one is a member of the Nebraska regiment who was left behind at Yokohama when his companions sailed for this port on the Hancock. A dozen stowaways were also concealed in the hold and were soon brought to light after the Senator left Yokohama.

One Man a Victim of Appendicitis.

The Senator had a good trip from Japan. With the exception of the sad illness and death of the regimental commander there was no sickness aboard, barring a few cases of seasickness and half a dozen cases of dysentery. At sight of land, all the invalids were able to leave the bunks and line up on the main deck except one poor fellow who has developed symptoms of appendicitis and who will be operated upon in the hospital here.

When the Tenth Pennsylvania left for the Philippines last year the muster comprised 850 men. Twenty-four were killed in battle or died in the Manila hospital, and the rest of the sick and wounded, to the number of seven, are on the hospital ship Relief, which will probably arrive here within the next few days.

The quarantine officer boarded the Senator and after a careful inspection passed crew and passengers. The transport had dropped anchor off the Folsom Street wharf and it was decided that the regiment should not be landed until today. Under cover of darkness, however, two privates slipped off in a tug, dropping down by a rope which had been used to haul up two sacks of mail matter sent out by the postmaster to the regiment.

The privates who thus absented themselves without leave announced their intention of seeing the town last night and of rejoining the ranks when the regiment was lined up on the dock today. As the official committee on reception to the regiment will not arrive here from Philadelphia until this evening, the substitute committee appointed informally undertook that duty. A tug had been chartered for today with the expectation that the Senator would not arrive last night and arrangements made to go out to meet the transport with a band, stacks of flowers and tons of dainties for the soldiers. The premature appearance of the transport last evening, however, did not permit the carrying out of all these plans, but the committee, comprising John Barclay of Greensburg, Pa., who had come out in advance of the regular committee, of which he is a member, to meet his badly wounded brother of the Tenth, who is on the Relief; John M. Beall, agent here of the Piedmont Air Line, formerly of Philadelphia; Alex Coulter, Greensburg, Pa.; M. M. Ogden of Governor Gage's staff, formerly a Pittsburg newspaper man; M. M. Lear of Denver, formerly of Greensburg, whose brother, W. A. Lear, is captain in the Tenth; Colonel Henry Hall of the Pittsburg Times, a member of Governor Stone's staff, and James A. Campbell of the Philadelphia Times, hastily embarked and were alongside the Senator, extending a warm greeting to their fellow Pennsylvanians and welcoming the brave lads back to their native land.

Out of respect to the dead regimental commander, there was little cheering or other noisy demonstrations, but the men quietly expressed their delight at the first glimpse of the Golden Gate. Like the Oregon and Nebraska regiments, the Pennsylvania troops, prior to sailing from Manila, voted in favor of being mustered out in San Francisco.

Lieutenant Colonel Barnett, who is now in command of the regiment, in the course of an interview, said:

"The boys are all glad, of course, to get back home again, but their joy is tinged with sadness on account of the death of Colonel Hawkins.

"The colonel was a most kind and considerate commander, who took a keen individual interest in his men and it is little wonder that they feel his loss a personal bereavement.

"Colonel Hawkins was a sick man at the beginning of the campaign which ended in the capture of Malolos. The regimental surgeon had advised him to retire for rest and medical attention, but the colonel peremptorily refused, declaring that he would go wherever his men went.

"When the final volley was fired at Malolos, Colonel Hawkins was right in front of the firing line, urging his men onward and encouraging them with his exhibition of personal bravery. After that decisive battle the colonel's illness increased. The ailment developed rapidly in the unhealthy climate. After we embarked he sank steadily and his death at sea was not unexpected."

FOUGHT IN TWO WARS.

Col. Hawkins Served With Honor in the Sixties—His Political Career.

WASHINGTON, Pa., August 2.—Colonel Alexander L. Hawkins was born on September 6, 1843. His early days were spent on his father's farm on the border line of Washington and Greene counties. He was a soldier by inheritance. He comes of fighting stock, belonging to the fourth generation of a fighting family.

Robert Hawkins, the pioneer of the family in America, came to this country from England in 1715. He was an industrious, hard-working man, and a patriot of the truest type. He lived almost a century in the country which he had adopted for his home during the most critical period of its history. During the war for independence he gave over $2,000 for the support of American arms. He sent three sons into the service, one of whom died in the memorable camp at Valley Forge.

The father of Col. Hawkins, James Hawkins, was a farmer and a carder of wool. A broad-minded and industrious man, who taught the lessons of thrift and frugality to his children. Alex. L. was the fourth child, and was surrounded by the best influences of a Christian home and community. After receiving a liberal education at the public schools he attended George's Creek academy, where he prepared himself for college.

He was a student at Waynesburg college for some time, and afterwards taught school. He was about to resume his collegiate studies when President Lincoln issued a call for volunteers.

In the Civil War.

Hawkins began his career as a soldier as a member of Company K, Fifteenth Pennsylvania cavalry, August 30, 1862. Company K was distinctively a Greene county organization, composed mostly of farmer boys, hardy types of the best citizen soldiers. His regiment took part against the raiders of Chambersburg and in the battle of Antietam.

Hawkins was made a corporal on May 12, 1863, and filled the various grades of non-commissioned officers until October 24, 1864, when he was made lieutenant, and in the following spring was given a commission as captain of United States colored troops.

His superior officers recognized in him an officer and warrior of great ability. He was acting lieutenant in the winter of '62 when the regiment was laying in the trenches at Nashville. As captain of United States colored troops he fought under Gen. Thomas, and did valiant service in the battle of Nashville.

Capt. Hawkins remained in the service until some time after the war, on the staff of Maj.-Gen. Clinton B. Fiske. He was mustered out January 21, 1865.

After returning from the war he entered the drug business in Pittsburgh in the fall of '65, remaining there for two years, when he sold his store and moved on a farm in East Bethlehem township, Washington county. This farm is the old Hawkins homestead, the original tract which came into the Hawkins family in 1772, on letters patent granted to Thomas Hawkins by the commonwealth of Pennsylvania.

Active in Politics.

After moving to Washington county he took an active part in the Republican politics of Washington county and was one of its most ardent workers after the close of the war. He served as chairman of the Republican committee in 1875, and on a number of occasions since. In the fall of '75 he was elected treasurer of the county by a large majority.

It was during his term in this office that he began his career with the Tenth Pennsylvania regiment of the national guard, with which he has been identified ever since and which is recognized as one of the best state organizations in the country. Company H, the local company of the Tenth, was in 1872 in a somewhat demoralized condition and there was danger of its being disorganized. By the advice of S. L. Wilson, the first captain of the company but at this time senior major of the regiment, A. L. Hawkins was chosen commander of the company. He received his commission January 1, 1877. He saved the disbandment of the company and proved the right man for the place and built up a strong organization.

Shortly after this the company was called out to quell the Pittsburgh riot. The company went overland to Greensburg and at this time Hawkins showed himself a skillful and efficient officer and a valuable acquisition to the Pennsylvania guard.

The Senior Colonel.

On February 27, 1879, he was elected colonel of the regiment to succeed Col. Black of Greensburg. He was re-elected in 1884, 1889 and 1894. His fourth term expired when he was in the volunteer service in the Philippines. He has for a long time been the senior colonel in the Pennsylvania guard and he was instrumental in its reorganization.

With the reorganization of the regiment and Col. Hawkins at the head it became a strong organization for efficient military service. The companies were all from country towns, and as many of its members were fresh from the farm, it became known as Hawkins' hayseed regiment. It, however, always stood close to the leaders in the annual state inspections.

During his twenty years' service as commander of the regiment Col. Hawkins has never missed an encampment or been absent on any occasion where his regiment was represented. He was in command at the inauguration of Presidents Garfield, Cleveland, Harrison and Cleveland, also under the call of the governor of Pennsylvania for three weeks in April, '91, during the labor strike in the coke industry of Western Pennsylvania. He was again with his regiment in the summer of '92 during the strike of the steel workers at Homestead.

In the Spanish War.

When President McKinley issued his call for volunteers for the Spanish war Hawkins, as colonel of the Tenth, was anxious to go to the front with his regiment. His command was selected as the only one from the Keystone state to be taken to the Philippines, and this was considered a mark of honor to the gallant colonel and his efficient regiment.

Col. Hawkins has had a political record of some interest, as well as a military one, being now the representative from the Washington and Beaver district in the state senate. He was elected to this office while on his way to the Philippines, and had no opposition, receiving a phenomenal vote in the district.

He preferred to remain in the distant land of the Philippines to fight for and serve his country, to look after the boys of his command who had been intrusted to his care, than to come home merely to gain political honor.

He had been a candidate for the senate eight years before, but the presence of another Republican in the field at the general election resulted at that time in the election of the Democrat.

Col. Hawkins was married in 1869 to Miss Cynthia Greenfield, to whom were born three children, Clyde E., a graduate of West Point and now a member of the Third United States cavalry as second lieutenant and on his way to the Philippines; Frank, a graduate of Washington and Jefferson college and who was captain of Company C, but now a second lieutenant in the regular army and still in the Philippines, and a daughter, Jessie, who is at home with her mother. He has a beautiful home in East Washington borough and was the chief Burgess of the town when he left for the seat of war.

TENTH REGIMENT

WAS LANDED TODAY.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 2.—The Pennsylvania troops disembarked today and were marched through the principal streets of the city to the model camp prepared for their reception at the Presidio, where they will be mustered out.

YELLOW FEVER SPREAD

Six Cases and Two Deaths at Phoebus, Va.

TOTAL OF 40 CASES AT HAMPTON.

The Number of Deaths There Eight. Also Three New Cases of the Disease at That Place—Soldiers Ordered to Battery Point, Del.

NORFOLK, Va., Aug. 2.—Reports from Phoebus stated that six cases of yellow fever had been found and that there had been two deaths among the negro population of Phoebus, adjoining the home.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 2.—"Three new cases of yellow fever in the Soldiers' home at Hampton and one death" was the official report received by Surgeon General Wyman from Dr. Wasdin, the yellow fever expert on duty at the institution. Added to Dr. Wasdin's figures, sent to Dr. Wyman the day before, this made 40 cases in all which had occurred at the home, of which eight had proved fatal. Surgeon White telegraphed Dr. Wyman that in his opinion there was little doubt that there had been some fever infection in the neighboring village of Phoebus, but the surgeon general said that this dispatch had not been followed by any evidence of a positive case at that place. Should the fever develop there, however, no surprise would be felt, in view of the proximity of the place to the Soldiers' home and the mixing of the inmates of the institution with the people of Phoebus.

The opinion was expressed that the situation continued encouraging, inasmuch as the disease had been kept within its original bounds. None of the nearby towns other than Phoebus had reported the appearance of infection or suspicious cases. The people for miles around the home were very much alarmed, but quiet. No restrictions had been placed on the departure of the several hundred visitors at Old Point Comfort, but Dr. Pettus will exercise careful supervision of those who may leave, so as to avoid danger of their communicating the disease. This will apply also to the soldiers stationed on the government reservation there, most of whom have been ordered to proceed to Battery Point, Del.

THREAT OF AXLINE.

Will Make the Merchants Sell to Soldiers—Involving Hanna's Men.

CLEVELAND, Aug. 2.—Adjutant General Axline said that he had found a way to smash the boycott, so far as it affected the troops. He declared that if any more complaints of discrimination against soldiers came to him he would appoint a judge advocate general to proceed against the merchants under the civil rights law and thus seek to bring them to time.

More than half of the employees of the Little Consolidated company have been initiated into the union of the Big Consolidated's former employees and a dispatch was sent to Senator M. A. Hanna, who is in France, asking him if he as president of the Little Consolidated company will recognize the union. No answer had been received to the cablegram.

A prominent physician said he was called to see a little girl who was dying. Two men told him he had better not attend the child, as its father was a "scab." He replied that they ought to serve notice of the boycott on the Almighty and inform him that they would not go to heaven for the child would be there in a short time.

A man was refused medicine at two drug stores, even though he was in a critical condition, simply because he had ridden on a Big Consolidated car.

Some unknown persons pushed an electric freight car loaded with ties from a switch on Mayfield heights onto the main track and down the long, steep hill toward Euclid avenue. About half way down the incline it collided with an upbound car with terrific force. Both were badly wrecked. Two passengers were on the upbound car. Neither they nor the crew were injured beyond a severe shaking up.

A special from Sandusky, O., said that sympathizers with the Cleveland street railway strikers began making attempts to wreck the cars of the Sandusky and Interurban line here. A detachment of police was sent to guard the line. The Sandusky and Interurban line is controlled by President Henry A. Everett of the Big Consolidated company at Cleveland.

Ohioans Drowned in the Klondike.

NORTH BALTIMORE, Aug. 2.—Advices were received here of the drowning at Crook's inlet, in the Klondike, of Dr. A. L. Lee and Gideon Kratzer of this city, together with 20 others. The news was limited to the bare announcement without details.

Akron Men Would Not Strike.

AKRON, Aug. 2.—Northern Ohio Traction company men refused to quit work at the request of the Cleveland strikers.

A LONG DISTANCE FIGHTER.

Blanco Thought Santiago Should Not Have Been Surrendered—Pareja and Toral on Trial.

MADRID, Aug. 2.—The second session of the courtmartial of Generals Toral and Pareja, charged with surrendering Santiago de Cuba to the Americans without having exhausted all means of defense, took place and General Pareja, in his defense, said the garrison of the city of Santiago de Cuba lacked food, many of the soldiers having died of hunger. In addition, the hospitals lacked medicines. The general read several telegrams exchanged between the authorities at Washington and Major General Shafter, the latter showing himself confident of forcing the surrender of Santiago de Cuba.

General Toral made a similar defense. He read a telegram sent him by Captain General Blanco, who, after consulting with the authorities at Madrid, approved of the capitulation.

Another Spanish officer testified that when he entered Santiago he found three quarters of the troops sick.

General Rubi gave testimony to the effect that further resistance would have been equivalent to the death of the remainder of the troops.

Lieutenant General Pando testified as to his regretting that the recommendations made by him before leaving Santiago had not been acted on, as Santiago then had sufficient ammunition, except for the artillery. He disapproved the decisions of the generals at Havana, who, he asserted, to succeed should have reinforced Santiago.

General Blanco said he had never advised the capitulation of Santiago, but favored a strong resistance. The government, he declared, had accepted the terms of the United States without discussion and when he telegraphed to General Toral it was too late. Santiago, he added, had far from an insufficient garrison.

Condemns Lack of Transport Service.

LONDON, Aug. 2.—The special artist of The Daily Graphic of this city, now in the Philippines, growled at the authorities who "forbid an artist the assistance which he might provide for himself by engaging servants to carry the food the military authorities decline to supply even now on payment." He condemns the alleged neglect of the transport service. He said in part: "You cannot be taken by cart from Manila to San Tomaso by road without having to swim streams. But for a bit of single railway line the troops would be starved on this line of operations. As it is, they are but fed from hand to mouth."

Some Volunteers Re-Enlisted.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 2.—The following was received from General Otis, dated Manila, July 31: Adjutant general, Washington: Transport Grant sailed yesterday, 78 officers, 8 citizens, 1,353 soldiers and discharged men, Wyoming, North Dakota and Idaho organizations. Left behind about 200 discharged men; good many have re-enlisted. Only sick soldier left, Corporal Frank Gore, H. Wyoming. Minnesota regiment and discharged men next; shipment in very few days. Otis.

Two Deaths Reported.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 2.—General Otis cabled the war department that the consul at Nagasaki informed him of the death in the hospital there of Private Richard H. Ralph, Battery B, Utah artillery. General Brooke has cabled the death at Santiago on July 28 of John Mack, quartermaster's employe, of yellow fever.

Leary Started For Guam.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 2.—The navy department was informed that the Yosemite sailed from Manila for Guam, where Captain Leary will be installed as governor of that new American possession, succeeding Lieutenant Kaiser.

Reinforcements Reached Manila.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 2.—Under date of Tuesday General Otis cabled the following from Manila to the war department: "Transport Pennsylvania arrived this morning; no casualties."

Dewey Sailed For Naples.

TRIESTE, Austria, Aug. 2.—The United States cruiser Olympia started for Naples.

Elkin Granted the Petition.

HARRISBURG, Aug. 2.—Attorney General Elkin granted the petition of the Municipal League of Philadelphia that a suggestion be filed in the Dauphin county court for a writ of mandamus against Secretary of the Commonwealth Grist to compel the publication of certain proposed amendments to the constitution passed at the recent session of the legislature and vetoed by Governor Stone.

Archbishop Ireland In Washington.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 2.—Archbishop Ireland arrived in Washington, where he will remain a day or two before going to St. Paul.

WEATHER FORECAST.

Western Pennsylvania and Ohio—Threatening; probably thunderstorms and somewhat colder this afternoon; tomorrow fair; fresh to brisk variable winds, becoming westerly.

West Virginia—Generally fair and continued high temperature today and tomorrow; variable winds.

HAWKINS' DEATH

The Body of the Dead Officer Brought Ashore Today.

FITTING CEREMONIES HELD.

DIED ABOARD SHIP ON JULY 18.

The Cause of His Death Reported to Have Been Due to Cancer of the Bowels—His Illness Dated From the Battle of Malolos, When He Exposed Himself Almost Recklessly in the Disease-Breeding Climate—Impressive Funeral Services Followed, Conducted by the Regimental Chaplain, the Following Sunday—Remains Attended by a Guard of Honor For the Rest of the Voyage. FOUGHT IN TWO WARS.

In the Spanish War.

When President McKinley issued his call for volunteers for the Spanish war Hawkins, as colonel of the Tenth, was anxious to go to the front with his regiment. His command was selected as the only one from the Keystone state to be taken to the Philippines, and this was considered a mark of honor to the gallant colonel and his efficient regiment.

Col. Hawkins has had a political record of some interest, as well as a military one, being now the representative from the Washington and Beaver district in the state senate. He was elected to this office while on his way to the Philippines, and had no opposition, receiving a phenomenal vote in the district.

He preferred to remain in the distant land of the Philippines to fight for and serve his country, to look after the boys of his command who had been entrusted to his care than to come home merely to gain political honor.

He had been a candidate for the senate eight years before, but the presence of another Republican in the field at the general election resulted at that time in the election of the Democrat.

Col. Hawkins was married in 1869 to Miss Cynthia Greenfield, to whom were born three children, Clyde E., a graduate of West Point and now a member of the Third United States cavalry as second lieutenant and on his way to the Philippines; Frank, a graduate of Washington and Jefferson college and who was captain of Company C, but now second lieutenant in the regular army and still in the Philippines; and a daughter, Jessie, who is at home with her mother. He has a beautiful home in East Washington borough and was the chief Burgess of the town when he left for the seat of war.

YELLOW FEVER SPREAD

Six Cases and Two Deaths at Phoebus, Va.

TOTAL OF 40 CASES AT HAMPTON.

The Number of Deaths There Eight. Also Three New Cases of the Disease at That Place—Soldiers Ordered to Battery Point, Del.

NORFOLK, Va., Aug. 2.—Reports from Phoebus stated that six cases of yellow fever had been found and that there had been two deaths among the negro population of Phoebus, adjoining the home.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 2.—"Three new cases of yellow fever in the Soldiers' home at Hampton and one death" was the official report received by Surgeon General Wyman from Dr. Wasdin, the yellow fever expert on duty at the institution. Added to Dr. Wasdin's figures, sent to Dr. Wyman the day before, this made 40 cases in all which had occurred at the home, of which eight had proved fatal. Surgeon White telegraphed Dr. Wyman that in his opinion there was little doubt that there had been some fever infection in the neighboring village of Phoebus, but the surgeon general said that this dispatch had not been followed by any evidence of a positive case at that place. Should the fever develop there, however, no surprise would be felt, in view of the proximity of the place to the Soldiers' home and the mixing of the inmates of the institution with the people of Phoebus.

The opinion was expressed that the situation continued encouraging, inasmuch as the disease had been kept within its original bounds. None of the nearby towns other than Phoebus had reported the appearance of infection or suspicious cases. The people for miles around the home were very much alarmed, but quiet. No restrictions had been placed on the departure of the several hundred visitors at Old Point Comfort, but Dr. Pettus will exercise careful supervision of those who may leave, so as to avoid danger of their communicating the disease. This will apply also to the soldiers stationed on the government reservation there, most of whom have been ordered to proceed to Battery Point, Del.

THREAT OF AXLINE.

Will Make the Merchants Sell to Soldiers—Involving Hanna's Men.

CLEVELAND, Aug. 3.—Adjutant General Axline said that he had found a way to smash the boycott, so far as it affected the troops. He declared that if any more complaints of discrimination against soldiers came to him he would appoint a judge advocate general to proceed against the merchants under the civil rights law and thus seek to bring them to time.

More than half of the employees of the Little Consolidated company have been initiated into the union of the Big Consolidated's former employees and a dispatch was sent to Senator M. A. Hanna, who is in France, asking him if he as president of the Little Consolidated company will recognize the union. No answer had been received to the cablegram.

A prominent physician said he was called to see a little girl who was dying. Two men told him he had better not attend the child, as its father was a "scab." He replied that they ought to serve notice of the boycott on the Almighty and inform him that they would not go to heaven for the child would be there in a short time.

A man was refused medicine at two drug stores, even though he was in a critical condition, simply because he had ridden on a Big Consolidated car.

Some unknown persons pushed an electric freight car loaded with ties from a switch on Mayfield heights onto the main track and down the long, steep hill toward Euclid avenue. About half way down the incline it collided with an upbound car with terrific force. Both were badly wrecked. Two passengers were on the upbound car. Neither they nor the crew were injured beyond a severe shaking up.

A special from Sandusky, O., said that sympathizers with the Cleveland street railway strikers began making attempts to wreck the cars of the Sandusky and Interurban line here. A detachment of police was sent to guard the line. The Sandusky and Interurban line is controlled by President Henry A. Everett of the Big Consolidated company at Cleveland.

A LONG DISTANCE FIGHTER.

Blanco Thought Santiago Should Not Have Been Surrendered—Pareja and Toral on Trial.

MADRID, Aug. 2.—The second session of the courtmartial of Generals Toral and Pareja, charged with surrendering Santiago de Cuba to the Americans without having exhausted all means of defense, took place and General Pareja, in his defense, said the garrison of the city of Santiago de Cuba lacked food, many of the soldiers having died of hunger. In addition, the hospitals lacked medicines. The general read several telegrams exchanged between the authorities at Washington and Major General Shafter, the latter showing himself confident of forcing the surrender of Santiago de Cuba.

General Toral made a similar defense. He read a telegram sent him by Captain General Blanco, who, after consulting with the authorities at Madrid, approved of the capitulation.

Another Spanish officer testified that when he entered Santiago he found three quarters of the troops sick.

General Rubi gave testimony to the effect that further resistance would have been equivalent to the death of the remainder of the troops.

Lieutenant General Pando testified as to his regretting that the recommendations made by him before leaving Santiago had not been acted on, as Santiago then had sufficient ammunition, except for the artillery. He disapproved the decisions of the generals at Havana, who, he asserted, to succeed should have reinforced Santiago.

General Blanco said he had never advised the capitulation of Santiago, but favored a strong resistance. The government, he declared, had accepted the terms of the United States without discussion and when he telegraphed to General Toral it was too late. Santiago, he added, had far from an insufficient garrison.

Condemns Lack of Transport Service.

LONDON, Aug. 2.—The special artist of The Daily Graphic of this city, now in the Philippines, growled at the authorities who "forbid an artist the assistance which he might provide for himself by engaging servants to carry the food the military authorities decline to supply even now on payment." He condemns the alleged neglect of the transport service. He said in part: "You cannot be taken by cart from Manila to San Tomaso by road without having to swim streams. But for a bit of single railway line the troops would be starved on this line of operations. As it is, they are but fed from hand to mouth."

Some Volunteers Re-Enlisted.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 2.—The following was received from General Otis, dated Manila, July 31: Adjutant general, Washington: Transport Grant sailed yesterday, 78 officers, 8 citizens, 1,353 soldiers and discharged men, Wyoming, North Dakota and Idaho organizations. Left behind about 200 discharged men; good many have re-enlisted. Only sick soldier left, Corporal Frank Gore, H, Wyoming. Minnesota regiment and discharged men next; shipment in very few days. OTIS.

Two Deaths Reported.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 2.—General Otis cabled the war department that the consul at Nagasaki informed him of the death in the hospital there of Private Richard H. Ralph, Battery B, Utah artillery. General Brooke has cabled the death at Santiago on July 28 of John Mack, quartermaster's employee, of yellow fever.

Leary Started For Guam.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 2.—The navy department was informed that the Yosemite sailed from Manila for Guam, where Captain Leary will be installed as governor of that new American possession, succeeding Lieutenant Kaiser.

Reinforcements Reached Manila.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 2.—Under date of Tuesday General Otis cabled the following from Manila to the war department: "Transport Pennsylvania arrived this morning; no casualties."

Dewey Sailed For Naples.

TRIESTE, Austria, Aug. 2.—The United States cruiser Olympia started for Naples.

GROCERY CLERKS

Installed Officers Last Evening and Elected Three Trustees.

The grocery clerks' union met last evening and installed the following officers: Frank Kuckert, president; Albert Kountz, secretary; David McLane, treasurer. E. W. Hill, A. C. Boice and F. P. Larkins were elected trustees and Edward Larkins was selected as a delegate to Trades council to fill a vacancy. A letter was read from the secretary of the American Federation of Labor stating that the union was regularly organized and had the full protection of the Federation. The only question that remains to be settled is whether the union is under the jurisdiction of the National Retail Clerks' union, and the members will not worry about it as long as they have the protection of the Federation.

FRANCE AND AMERICA.

Consul Bruwaert Discusses the 'New Reciprocity Treaty.'

BARGAIN IS IN OUR FAVOR.

United States Placed on the Same Footing With England, Germany, Belgium and Austria—New Trade Era Is Begun—Why Details of Agreement Are Kept Secret.

Much interest was manifested the other day in New York in the conclusion of the reciprocity treaty between the United States and France, under which American exports to France will be admitted on the same terms with exports from England, Germany and other European countries which have had the benefit of the French minimum tariff.

Neither Collector Bidwell nor Appraiser Wakemen had learned from Washington the details of the treaty, and neither would venture an opinion as to its effect, says the New York Herald. Francois Edmond Bruwaert, the French consul general to the United States, while not informed as to the extent of the American concessions, explained the general scope of the treaty.

"I regard it as an excellent thing for the United States," he said. "America was the only country which did not have the benefit of our minimum tariff. As manufacturers abroad are satisfied with a profit of 5 per cent, the difference between the maximum and minimum rates was sufficient to keep the United States out of the French market."

"France's annual importation of manufactured articles is about $280,000,000, and the United States will get a good share of this. America undersells England in cotton goods in China, and there is no reason why it cannot do the same in France. It will be the same with other articles."

"England, Belgium, Germany and Austria now supply France with her imported manufactured articles. The leading imports are raw cotton, wheat, tobacco, mineral oil, copper and lead. America sends agricultural implements, sewing machines, electrical appliances and pumps."

"There are 642 articles on the dutiable list of the French tariff, and the treaty gives the United States the minimum rate on all except 12. Germany, England and the other countries which have treaties with France do not enjoy the minimum rate on these 12 exceptions, which are chiefly agricultural products. The average difference between the French maximum and minimum rate is 33 per cent, so that imports from the United States will pay one-third less duty when the treaty goes into effect."

"There are 463 dutiable items in the tariff law of the United States, and in return for her concessions France will obtain a lower rate on less than 100 of them, the average reduction being only 10 per cent. While this seems one-sided, it is not so much so as it appears, because American goods have been sent into France as English goods under the minimum tariff."

"I do not think the treaty can go into effect before next February. It must be ratified both here and in France and signed by President Loubet and President McKinley. Then copies of the treaty must be exchanged."

"This treaty marks a new era for the United States. There will eventually be opposition to American imports in foreign countries, and it will be wise for the United States to make trade treaties before that opposition becomes too strong. Mr. Kasson, who negotiated the treaty for the United States, has lived much abroad, and I think he takes a broad view of the situation, foreseeing what must happen in the future."

"France has given all she can give, because, with her $7,000,000,000 of national debt, she cannot reduce her tariff any further. We did not get what we asked, by any means, but we obtained all the United States was willing to give. We realized that the treaty must be such that congress would approve it, and France deferred to President McKinley's wishes on that account."

M. Bruwaert said that the United States had a great commercial future and expressed admiration at the ease with which Secretary Gage borrowed all the money needed for the war with Spain.

Secrecy is maintained in regard to the classes of goods upon which the American tariff will be lowered. This is done in order to avoid the opposition of interests which might object to foreign competition in the home market. The details will probably not be made known before congress meets.

An Oklahoma Yacht.

The Howard brothers of Fulton, O. T., have invented a vehicle in which they ride and which is propelled by means of sails. These brothers rode to Beaver, 20 miles distant, in the new carriage. The machine, according to the Kansas City Times, is a curiously constructed thing, having four wheels and is fitted with masts and sails on the principle of a sailing vessel, except that it has wheels and runs on land instead of on water. It was simply driven by the wind all the way from Fulton. It is reported to have made good speed on the trip and at times to have traveled at the rate of 15 miles an hour.

A Sure Winner.

A buzzard, who found a freshly killed hare and was about to bear it away to a tree top to be eaten at leisure, was addressed by a fox who came running up with:

"Ah, now, but I mistook you for the eagle and wanted a word with you."

The buzzard was flattered and offered reynard the head of the hare. As she did so the wolf came up and observed: "Well, well, but who ever saw the buzzard looking so fierce and so proud as today? Really, now, but I took you for the condor."

That tickled the buzzard again, and to show her good will she divided the body of the hare with the wolf. She had said that she must be off, when the jackal came trotting up and exclaimed:

"Upon my word, but I must have dust in my eyes. I was sure that my friend here was the ostrich, and I was going to ask her for a feather. Mrs. Buzzard, my compliments!"

The buzzard grinned and giggled and tried to look shy, and meanwhile the jackal ate up the other half of the hare.

"Here—how's this—where's my part?" exclaimed the buzzard, as she got to see what had happened.

"Oh, we took the meat and you have the taffy!" replied the jackal as he licked his chops and walked off.

The Influence of the Flat.

The flat has made its mark on the conditions of modern life. A good illustration of this fact is the following story of a bright Kenwood youngster "going on 6." The boy heard a visitor say to his grandmother, "Well, I suppose you feel very proud these days, with three of your sons married and settled?"

"Only two," corrected the boy, who was not supposed to understand anything at all about the subject. Just to see what his idea was his grandmother and her visitor cross examined him. The conversation ran like this:

"Why do you think only two are married, John? There's your Uncle Jim—he's one."

"Yes ma'am. And he lives in a flat."

"What's that got to do with it? And there's your Uncle Fred—he's two."

"Yes ma'am. And he lives in a flat too."

"Why, yes; certainly. And there's your own father—he's three."

"No, ma'am," cried the youngster triumphantly. "My papa isn't married. I know he isn't 'cause he lives in a house."—Chicago Inter Ocean.

Bear Baiting In Olden Days.

So popular was bull baiting in olden days in England that riots followed the attempt to suppress it in the large towns. Bear baiting was more popular still, if that could be. In various places, Liverpool especially, it made part of the festivities at the election of the mayor, being held before his worship started for church. Ladies commonly attended in great numbers. There was a famous bear at Liverpool, which showed such grand sport in 1782 that certain fair admirers presented it with a garland, decked it with ribbons and carried it to the theater, where a special entertainment had been "commanded," which Bruin sat out in the front of their box. But of gossip about bull and bear baiting there is no end. Enthusiastic lovers of Shakespeare read with interest the petition of the royal bear warden, addressed to Queen Elizabeth in 1595, complaining that his licensed performances had been neglected of late because every one went to the theater.

Favor and Favour.

Now I am not going to argue about the matter, but it may interest the reader to know that the first canvassing card which Mr. Gladstone ever issued, when he was a young Tory candidate at Newark, was printed in this way: "Mr. Gladstone to solicit the favor of your vote and interest."

So those misguided creatures who say that "favor" is a modern Americanism must explain how an ultra blue Oxford Tory, educated up to the eyebrows, came to use that form of spelling nearly 70 years ago.—London Leader.

Double Proof.

"Do you believe in heredity, Mrs. Simpson?"

"Indeed I do. Every mean trait Bobby has I can trace right back to his father."

"Does his father believe in heredity too?"

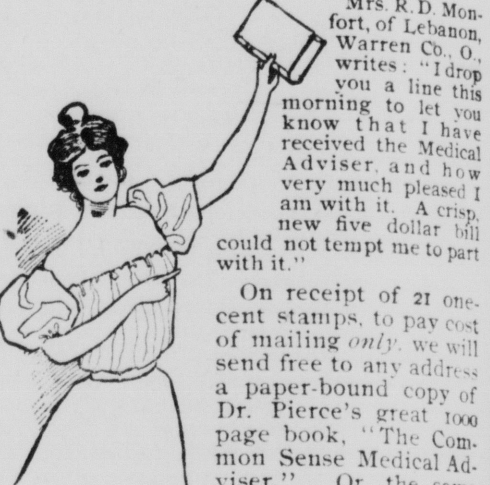

"Yes. He traces Bobby's faults all back to me."—Chicago Record.

WELCOME WORDS TO WOMEN.

Women who suffer with disorders peculiar to their sex should write to Dr. Pierce and receive free the advice of a physician of over thirty years' experience—a skilled and successful specialist in the diseases of women. Every letter of this sort has the most careful consideration and is, of course, regarded as sacredly confidential. Many sensitively modest women write fully to Dr. Pierce what they would shrink from telling to their local physician. The local physician is pretty sure to say that he cannot do anything without "an examination." Dr. Pierce holds that these distasteful examinations are generally needless, and that no woman, except in rare cases, should submit to them.

Dr. Pierce's treatment will cure you right in the privacy of your own home. His "Favorite Prescription" has cured hundreds of thousands, some of them the worst imaginable cases. It is the only medicine of its kind that is the product of a regularly graduated physician. Some unscrupulous medicine dealers may offer you a substitute. Don't take it. Don't trifle with your health. Write to Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.,—take his advice and be well.

It's the constant workings of Doan's Kidney Pills.

Are these reports all true? Ask a neighbor who knows.

Here's an East Liverpool man, ask him.

Read what he says:

Mr. Thomas Laughlin, of 172 Sophia street, engineer, says: "I caught cold and neglected it—it settled in my back and kidneys, forced me to quit work and almost cost me my life. I could not move without suffering, and often could neither sit, stand or lie for pain. The secretion of the kidneys went wrong, and distressed and annoyed me both night and day. I took medicines for two years but did not get well. When I read of Doan's Kidney Pills I got a box at the W. & W. pharmacy. Noticing some improvement by the time I had taken the first half of the box, I continued until I took four boxes, and my back was all right as well as the urinary trouble. Doan's Kidney Pills are without doubt a grand remedy. I will endorse them at all times. I will substantiate my statement of Doan's Kidney Pills if any one will call at my house to investigate for themselves. My wife had some backache also; she took Doan's Kidney Pills and was cured."

GROCERY CLERKS

Installed Officers Last Evening and Elected Three Trustees.

The grocery clerks' union met last evening and installed the following officers: Frank Kuckert, president; Albert Kountz, secretary; David McLane, treasurer. E. W. Hill, A. C. Boice and F. P. Larkins were elected trustees and Edward Larkins was selected as a delegate to Trades council to fill a vacancy. A letter was read from the secretary of the American Federation of Labor stating that the union was regularly organized and had the full protection of the Federation. The only question that remains to be settled is whether the union is under the jurisdiction of the National Retail Clerks' union, and the members will not worry about it as long as they have the protection of the Federation.

A NEW ELECTION

Will Likely Be the Result of the Fight in the Eighth.

COLUMBUS, Aug. 2.—[Special]—There will, in all probability, be a new election ordered for all officers of the Eighth regiment, O. N. G., except colonel, as the result of the controversy among officers and men over the result of Friday's election. The matter is in the hands of Assistant Adjutant General Kingsley, who will announce his decision this week.

Well Known Young Man Married In Steubenville.

Mr. Erastus Phillips, a well known young gentleman of East Liverpool, and Miss Lizzie Boyd, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Boyd, of 455 South Fourth street, were quietly married Monday evening at 6 o'clock at the home of the bride's parents by Rev. J. S. Keager, of the First M. E. church. They left later on a two weeks' wedding tour. They will make their future home at East Liverpool.—Steubenville News.

AN OLD SOLDIER

Wanted the Trustees to Help Him to the Soldiers' Home.

Yesterday afternoon an old soldier called at the office of the township trustees and asked for aid. He said he had walked from New Castle and was on his way to the soldiers' home. He had a pocketful of cigars and tobacco and had been drinking and the trustees turned him away as they did not think him a worthy object of charity.

The Gossip.

More attention should be paid to the old fashioned saying, "He who brings will carry." If a man brings bad stories about others to you, he will carry bad stories about you to others. This is so true it is a wonder that people are not more cautious in their talk when with gossips. Don't let any one carry anything from you.—Atchison Globe.

FRANCE AND AMERICA.

Consul Bruwaert Discusses the 'New Reciprocity Treaty.

BARGAIN IS IN OUR FAVOR.

United States Placed on the Same Footing With England, Germany, Belgium and Austria—New Trade Era Is Begun—Why Details of Agreement Are Kept Secret.

Much interest was manifested the other day in New York in the conclusion of the reciprocity treaty between the United States and France, under which American exports to France will be admitted on the same terms with exports from England, Germany and other European countries which have had the benefit of the French minimum tariff.

Neither Collector Bidwell nor Appraiser Wakemen had learned from Washington the details of the treaty, and neither would venture an opinion as to its effect, says the New York Herald. Francois Edmond Bruwaert, the French consul general to the United States, while not informed as to the extent of the American concessions, explained the general scope of the treaty.

"I regard it as an excellent thing for the United States," he said. "America was the only country which did not have the benefit of our minimum tariff. As manufacturers abroad are satisfied with a profit of 5 per cent, the difference between the maximum and minimum rates was sufficient to keep the United States out of the French market."

"France's annual importation of manufactured articles is about $280,000,000, and the United States will get a good share of this. America undersells England in cotton goods in China, and there is no reason why it cannot do the same in France. It will be the same with other articles."

"England, Belgium, Germany and Austria now supply France with her imported manufactured articles. The leading imports are raw cotton, wheat, tobacco, mineral oil, copper and lead. America sends agricultural implements, sewing machines, electrical appliances and pumps."

"There are 642 articles on the dutiable list of the French tariff, and the treaty gives the United States the minimum rate on all except 12. Germany, England and the other countries which have treaties with France do not enjoy the minimum rate on these 12 exceptions, which are chiefly agricultural products. The average difference between the French maximum and minimum rate is 33 per cent, so that imports from the United States will pay one-third less duty when the treaty goes into effect."

"There are 463 dutiable items in the tariff law of the United States, and in return for her concessions France will obtain a lower rate on less than 100 of them, the average reduction being only 10 per cent. While this seems one-sided, it is not so much so as it appears, because American goods have been sent into France as English goods under the minimum tariff."

"I do not think the treaty can go into effect before next February. It must be ratified both here and in France and signed by President Loubet and President McKinley. Then copies of the treaty must be exchanged."

"This treaty marks a new era for the United States. There will eventually be opposition to American imports in foreign countries, and it will be wise for the United States to make trade treaties before that opposition becomes too strong. Mr. Kasson, who negotiated the treaty for the United States, has lived much abroad, and I think he takes a broad view of the situation, foreseeing what must happen in the future."

"France has given all she can give, because, with her $7,000,000,000 of national debt, she cannot reduce her tariff any further. We did not get what we asked, by any means, but we obtained all the United States was willing to give. We realized that the treaty must be such that congress would approve it, and France deferred to President McKinley's wishes on that account."

M. Bruwaert said that the United States had a great commercial future and expressed admiration at the ease with which Secretary Gage borrowed all the money needed for the war with Spain.

Secrecy is maintained in regard to the classes of goods upon which the American tariff will be lowered. This is done in order to avoid the opposition of interests which might object to foreign competition in the home market. The details will probably not be made known before congress meets.

An Oklahoma Yacht.

The Howard brothers of Fulton, O. T., have invented a vehicle in which they ride and which is propelled by means of sails. These brothers rode to Beaver, 20 miles distant, in the new carriage. The machine, according to the Kansas City Times, is a curiously constructed thing, having four wheels and is fitted with masts and sails on the principle of a sailing vessel, except that it has wheels and runs on land instead of on water. It was simply driven by the wind all the way from Fulton. It is reported to have made good speed on the trip and at times to have traveled at the rate of 15 miles an hour.

A Sure Winner.

A buzzard, who found a freshly killed hare and was about to bear it away to a tree top to be eaten at leisure, was addressed by a fox who came running up with:

"Ah, now, but I mistook you for the eagle and wanted a word with you."

The buzzard was flattered and offered reynard the head of the hare. As she did so the wolf came up and observed: "Well, well, but who ever saw the buzzard looking so fierce and so proud as today? Really, now, but I took you for the condor."

That tickled the buzzard again, and to show her good will she divided the body of the hare with the wolf. She had said that she must be off, when the jackal came trotting up and exclaimed:

"Upon my word, but I must have dust in my eyes. I was sure that my friend here was the ostrich, and I was going to ask her for a feather. Mrs. Buzzard, my compliments!"

The buzzard grinned and giggled and tried to look shy, and meanwhile the jackal ate up the other half of the hare.

"Here—how's this—where's my part?" exclaimed the buzzard, as she got to see what had happened.

"Oh, we took the meat and you have the taffy!" replied the jackal as he licked his chops and walked off.

The Influence of the Flat.

The flat has made its mark on the conditions of modern life. A good illustration of this fact is the following story of a bright Kenwood youngster "going on 6." The boy heard a visitor say to his grandmother, "Well, I suppose you feel very proud these days, with three of your sons married and settled?"

"Only two," corrected the boy, who was not supposed to understand anything at all about the subject. Just to see what his idea was his grandmother and her visitor cross examined him. The conversation ran like this:

"Why do you think only two are married, John? There's your Uncle Jim—he's one."

"Yes, ma'am. And he lives in a flat."

"What's that got to do with it? And there's your Uncle Fred—he's two."

"Yes, ma'am. And he lives in a flat too."

"Why, yes; certainly. And there's your own father—he's three."

"No, ma'am," cried the youngster triumphantly. "My papa isn't married. I know he isn't 'cause he lives in a house."—Chicago Inter Ocean.

Bear Baiting In Olden Days.

So popular was bull baiting in olden days in England that riots followed the attempt to suppress it in the large towns. Bear baiting was more popular still, if that could be. In various places, Liverpool especially, it made part of the festivities at the election of the mayor, being held before his worship started for church. Ladies commonly attended in great numbers. There was a famous bear at Liverpool, which showed such grand sport in 1782 that certain fair admirers presented it with a garland, decked it with ribbons and carried it to the theater, where a special entertainment had been "commanded," which Bruin sat out in the front of their box. But of gossip about bull and bear baiting there is no end. Enthusiastic lovers of Shakespeare read with interest the petition of the royal bear warden, addressed to Queen Elizabeth in 1595, complaining that his licensed performances had been neglected of late because every one went to the theater.

Favor and Favour.

Now I am not going to argue about the matter, but it may interest the reader to know that the first canvassing card which Mr. Gladstone ever issued, when he was a young Tory candidate at Newark, was printed in this way: "Mr. Gladstone to solicit the favor of your vote and interest."

So those misguided creatures who say that "favor" is a modern Americanism must explain how an ultra blue Oxford Tory, educated up to the eyebrows, came to use that form of spelling nearly 70 years ago.—London Leader.

Double Proof.

"Do you believe in heredity, Mrs. Simpson?"

"Indeed I do. Every mean trait Bobby has I can trace right back to his father."

"Yes. He traces Bobby's faults all back to me."—Chicago Record.

Many sensitively modest women write fully to Dr. Pierce what they would shrink from telling to their local physician. The local physician is pretty sure to say that he cannot do anything without "an examination." Dr. Pierce holds that these distasteful examinations are generally needless, and that no woman, except in rare cases, should submit to them.

Are these reports all true? Ask a neighbor who knows.

Here's an East Liverpool man, as him.

Read what he says:

Mr. Thomas Laughlin, of 172 Sophia street, engineer, says: "I caught cold and neglected it—it settled in my back and kidneys, forced me to quit work and almost cost me my life. I could not move without suffering, and often could neither sit, stand or lie for pain. The secretion of the kidneys went wrong, and distressed and annoyed me both night and day. I took medicines for two years but did not get well. When I read of Doan's Kidney Pills I got a box at the W. & W. pharmacy. Noticing some improvement by the time I had taken the first half of the box, I continued until I took four boxes, and my back was all right as well as the urinary trouble. Doan's Kidney Pills are without doubt a grand remedy. I will endorse them at all times. I will substantiate my statement of Doan's Kidney Pills if any one will call at my house to investigate for themselves. My wife had some backache also; she took Doan's Kidney Pills and was cured."

Doan's Kidney Pills are sold for 50 cents per box by all dealers, or sent by mail on receipt of price by Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the U. S. Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

Henry Chambers Going to Detroit For That Purpose—Another Wedding In East End—Need Men at the East End Pottery. News of the Busy Suburb.

The East End police have been notified of a crowd of boys residing on the hill above Pennsylvania avenue, who persist in throwing stones at houses at the foot of the hill and breaking windows. The boys have been doing this for several months, and although owners of houses along the street have notified the parents of the boys to have their children refrain from such sport, it had no effect. The property owners have become tired and have asked the police to assist them in breaking up the practice. Last night an officer was on the lookout and his presence had the desired effect.

A Correspondent Thinks Technical Classes Might Be Added There.

EDITOR NEWS REVIEW:—In regard to Mr. Baum's suggestion that a pottery technical school be established in connection with the new library for teaching freehand drawing, drawing from nature, modeling in clay and chemical analysis of clays and material used in potting, why could not these classes be added to the high school curriculum as an additional or optional course? It would benefit the city as a pottery center and greatly enhance the value of our schools. As I understand Mr. Baum's idea, the proposed technical school would be maintained at the expense of the city, so the cost would be borne by the taxpayers anyhow. Would such a scheme be possible? I would like to hear opinions on the subject.

WITH ONE VOICE.

East Liverpool People Who Have Investigated Are a Unit on the Subject.

The voice of the people is heard all o'er the land. Trumpet notes of truth. Sounded from East to West. East Liverpool has joined the throng. Many a citizen lifts his voice in praise.

Enthusiastic people everywhere. Backs relieved of heavy burdens. Nights of suffering, days of misery. Become nights of rest and days of joy.

It's the constant workings of Doan's Kidney Pills.

Are these reports all true? Ask a neighbor who knows.

Here's an East Liverpool man, ask him.

Read what he says: Mr. Thomas Laughlin, of 172 Sophia street, engineer, says: "I caught cold and neglected it—it settled in my back and kidneys, forced me to quit work and almost cost me my life. I could not move without suffering, and often could not sit, stand or lie for pain. The secretion of the kidneys went wrong, and distressed and annoyed me both night and day. I took medicines for two years but did not get well. When I read of Doan's Kidney Pills I got a box at the W. & W. pharmacy. Noticing some improvement by the time I had taken the first half of the box, I continued until I took four boxes, and my back was all right as well as the urinary trouble. Doan's Kidney Pills are without doubt a grand remedy. I will endorse them at all times. I will substantiate my statement of Doan's Kidney Pills if any one will call at my house to investigate for themselves. My wife had some backache also; she took Doan's Kidney Pills and was cured."

Doan's Kidney Pills are sold for 50 cents per box by all dealers, or sent by mail on receipt of price by Foster-McLburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the U. S. Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

EVERY WOMAN Sometimes needs a reliable monthly regulating medicine. DR. PEAL'S PENNYROYAL PILLS, Are prompt, safe and certain in result. The genuine (Dr. Peal's) never disappoint. Sent anywhere $1.00. For sale by C. G. Anderson, Druggist.

A GROCER CAUGHT SUNDAY LAST

A Wheelman Injured on First Avenue Last Night—More Men Working on the Extension—Sheriff Wilkins Did Some Work on the Southside Yesterday.

Squire Finley went to Cumberland yesterday for the purpose of ascertaining from the prosecuting attorney of Hancock county some facts relating to storekeepers who allow their places to be open on Sunday. What he learned will have much bearing upon a case against a prominent Southside grocer who sold goods Sunday last.

When the several grocers learned one of their number was open they notified Mr. Finley and he at once investigated the matter and found the facts to be as represented. Hence the trip to the courthouse. Some interesting developments are promised later in the week.

MORE MEN.

Additional Forces From Panhandle Road Being Employed.

The Steubenville Gazette says: "An extra work train put on the Panhandle 10 weeks ago was discontinued yesterday, but men who desired work were sent to the Cumberland branch extension at Kenilworth. So far about one mile of the proposed road to Rock Springs has been laid. The new extension will make more work than the two section gangs are capable of doing; so, in order to divide the work equitably, two gangs will soon be added. The company will have all the trestles filled in before spring and the road bed in as good condition as the main line. Yesterday the pile driver was started to work building retaining walls at numerous points along the branch. Supervisor Ovington, who has charge of the branch, has four extra work gangs ditching and widening cuts."

SOCIAL FRIDAY EVENING.

A Number of East Liverpool People Will Go to Ramsey's Place.

A number of East Liverpool people will go to Frank Ramsey's place, between here and Hookstown, Friday evening, to enjoy a social to be held for the purpose of assisting the Presbyterian church of Hookstown. Doctor Davis, who enjoys an enviable reputation as an elocutionist, has kindly promised to be present and entertain the party. Choice refreshments will be served and any person interested is cordially invited. Mr. Ramsey's place is just across the line, about five miles from East Liverpool and two and a half from Hookstown. It is an ideal place for a pleasant evening.

AFTER WITNESSES.

Many Persons From Chester Were In Cumberland Today.

Yesterday Sheriff Wilkins, of Hancock county, was on the Southside serving summonses on James M. Porter, Capt. John Porter, R. H. Brown, Peter A. Pugh, Capt. W. C. Mahan, Brown Hewitt, Allen E. McDonald, Pearl Howard, Hugh Newell, James W. Finley and J. P. Bradley. These men went to Cumberland today and testified before the commissioners of Hancock county, who were appointed by the court to assess the damage to property caused by the Panhandle railroad company building an extension to the Cumberland branch.

UNDER A WAGON.

Enoch Riley Met With a Serious Accident Last Night.

While riding his bicycle on First avenue last night Enoch Riley was crowded into a ditch by a farmer's wagon, which caused him to have his left arm badly injured. He fell under the wagon, and but for timely assistance his injuries might have been worse. It is probable a charge of reckless driving will be preferred against the driver.

John Martin became intoxicated last evening and was taken before Squire Finley a short time. Matters were so arranged that he was taken home by his wife, accompanied by Officer Marshall.

NO CLUE.

William Smith Is Still Among the Missing.

There is still no clue to William Smith, but his bondsmen are leaving no stone unturned to find him, and Squire McLane is of the opinion that he will be brought to justice.

There is a great deal of comment as to whether Smith's bond has been forfeited and status of the case is as follows: Justice McLane will certify the case to the clerk of courts and it will then go to the grand jury. Should the grand jury find an indictment the case will be set for hearing in common pleas court and the bondsmen will be expected to furnish him. If he is not present the judge will give them a reasonable time in which to produce their man and if he is not forthcoming at the end of that time the bond will be forfeited and the men required to pay the amount. The bondsmen hope to secure Smith before the case reaches the grand jury.

The Broker's Reply.
A youthful looking broker went into a Broadway store the other day to buy a new hat, and laid his old one on the counter while waiting for the clerk to wait upon him. He happened to turn around as a Quaker came in in the garb unusual even in this cosmopolitan city, and smiled involuntarily at the odd sight. The Quaker took the broker for a salesman, and, taking off his broad hat, held it out to the young man, saying:
"Hast thou a hat like this, my friend?"
"No," replied the broker, "and if I had I would not wear it."
Then, noticing the look of surprise on the face of the grave old Quaker, he explained that he dealt in stocks, not in hats.—New York Tribune.

Disastrous Fortune Telling.

An extraordinary case of madness, in which all members of a family, consisting of father, mother and four children, were simultaneously afflicted, recently occurred in Belgium. A party of strolling gypsies, who undertook to tell the father's fortune by means of cards, declared that he would be killed while serving in the army, and this prediction so impressed him and his family that in the course of the same day they all developed signs of wavering reason and before long had to be put under restraint. The gypsies, who were the source of the trouble, were arrested by the German police when crossing the frontier from Belgium.

Wheeled Into the Army.

James E. Emerson, aged 18 years, arrived at New York recently after a journey from Columbus, O., on his bicycle, says the Philadelphia Press. He wanted to enlist in the navy, but, finding the demand was greater for recruits in the army, he enlisted the other day for service in the Philippines.

Enoch Riley Met With a Serious Accident Last Night.

While riding his bicycle on First avenue last night Enoch Riley was crowded into a ditch by a farmer's wagon, which caused him to have his left arm badly injured. He fell under the wagon, and but for timely assistance his injuries might have been worse. It is probable a charge of reckless driving will be preferred against the driver.

Before Justice Finley.

NO CLUE.

William Smith Is Still Among the Missing.

There is still no clue to William Smith, but his bondsmen are leaving no stone unturned to find him, and Squire McLane is of the opinion that he will be brought to justice.

There is a great deal of comment as to whether Smith's bond has been forfeited and status of the case is as follows: Justice McLane will certify the case to the clerk of courts and it will then go to the grand jury. Should the grand jury find an indictment the case will be set for hearing in common pleas court and the bondsmen will be expected to furnish him. If he is not present the judge will give them a reasonable time in which to produce their man and if he is not forthcoming at the end of that time the bond will be forfeited and the men required to pay the amount. The bondsmen hope to secure Smith before the case reaches the grand jury.

The Broker's Reply.

A youthful looking broker went into a Broadway store the other day to buy a new hat, and laid his old one on the counter while waiting for the clerk to wait upon him. He happened to turn around as a Quaker came in in the garb unusual even in this cosmopolitan city, and smiled involuntarily at the odd sight. The Quaker took the broker for a salesman, and, taking off his broad hat, held it out to the young man, saying:

"Hast thou a hat like this, my friend?"

"No," replied the broker, "and if I had I would not wear it."

Then, noticing the look of surprise on the face of the grave old Quaker, he explained that he dealt in stocks, not in hats.—New York Tribune.

Disastrous Fortune Telling.

An extraordinary case of madness, in which all members of a family, consisting of father, mother and four children, were simultaneously afflicted, recently occurred in Belgium. A party of strolling gypsies, who undertook to tell the father's fortune by means of cards, declared that he would be killed while serving in the army, and this prediction so impressed him and his family that in the course of the same day they all developed signs of wavering reason and before long had to be put under restraint. The gypsies, who were the source of the trouble, were arrested by the German police when crossing the frontier from Belgium.

Wheeled Into the Army.

James E. Emerson, aged 18 years, arrived at New York recently after a journey from Columbus, O., on his bicycle, says the Philadelphia Press. He wanted to enlist in the navy, but, finding the demand was greater for recruits in the army, he enlisted the other day for service in the Philippines.

It would be a queer Democratic platform that didn't denounce something as unconstitutional. That's their last standby in every argument.

COLUMBIANA county delegates to the Democratic state convention will go uninstructed. Mr. McLean will please make a note in his check book.

THE TOWNSHIP TRUSTEES.

The semi-annual statement of the township trustees published yesterday shows the financial end of their work but the countless benefactions accomplished with the small amount of cash expended can only be guessed at by outsiders. The trustees deserve well of the community.

A DEMOCRATIC PLATFORM.

The county Democracy built their Wellsville platform in the usual Democratic way. Picking up a Republican plank they decided they didn't want one like that and left the hole unplanked. When they got through they had a beautiful array of holes where planks might have been put but as they didn't like the Republican lumber they didn't have any platform.

A TECHNICAL SCHOOL.

Mr. Baum's suggestion that a pottery technical school might be established in connection with the proposed Carnegie library will be of service if it only results in the discussion of the advantages of such a school. An institution of this kind, even apart from the library, would be of great benefit to the city. A suggestion from another correspondent that courses as suggested by Mr. Baum might be added to the high school is also worth discussion.

PUBLIC DUTY.

The election of incompetent men to council, due directly to the neglect of the taxpayers to take sufficient interest to select good men, results not alone in immediate inconvenience to the citizens but also injures the city abroad. A town with a reckless council and an exorbitant tax rate is shunned by new enterprises and prospective residents. Level headed men with business ability and a certain amount of capacity for affairs are the men needed to run the business of a municipality. Pothouse politicians, who use their official power for personal purposes, are the result of neglect of duty on the part of voters. Yet they may be said to be truly representative of the community, for their neglect of the city's interests is only parallel to and the result of the neglect of their constituents in permitting them to be elected. The stream rises no higher than its source. East Liverpool voters promise, however, to remedy this the next time by doing their full duty and seeing that men are elected to council who will do their duty also.

IN MEMORIAM.

Colonel A. L. Hawkins is dead, and the whole nation mourns. God be with his dear ones in their Pennsylvania home. God be with wife and daughter and with his two gallant sons, Clyde and Frank, officers in the regular army.

Colonel A. L. Hawkins commanded the Tenth for over twenty years. He was elected and re-elected without opposition on each occasion, no man desiring to enter the contest against him. The writer served with him for sixteen years, as private, corporal, sergeant, color bearer and captain, and knew him and loved him well. He was the friend of the private and of the officer. All he asked was that duty should be well performed. He was a strict disciplinarian, but tempered justice with mercy. He was fairly worshipped by the rank and file. He was a model soldier, brave almost to recklessness. The writer will remember his gallant conduct on the night of July 31, and the morning of Aug. 1, 1898, so long as memory holds sway. His bearing on August 13, 1898, upon entering Manila from the beach, under a hot fire from Spanish sharpshooters, was simply superb. He seemed unconscious of danger. His bravery in the after battles against the Filipinos won for him the praise of the nation. It is good to have served under such a commander; good to have carried Old Glory under his orders. The nation mourns for him. God bless and comfort his wife and children.

CROXALL ARRAIGNED

Pleaded Not Guilty to a Charge of Robbery and Will

HAVE A HEARING TOMORROW

Stewart, Gourley and Jenkins, Charged With Stealing Flour, Pleaded Not Guilty, Waive an Examination and Are Held For Court--Geary Gets $9.60.

Newton Croxall was arraigned this morning before Mayor Bough, charged by Officer McMillan with holding up Miss Minnie and Miss Lida Shaffer last Saturday evening and taking from them a gold watch and chain valued at $42, a gold ring worth $3 and money to the amount of $6. Croxall promptly pleaded not guilty to the charge and tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock was set for hearing the case. He was held under $1,000 bail and is still in jail.

George Stewart, Ike Gourley and James Jenkins were arraigned this morning on a charge of breaking into a car and stealing eight sacks of flour, valued at $4.40, and belonging to Fitzgerald Bros. They all pleaded not guilty, but waived a preliminary examination and were bound over to court in the sum of $350 each. They will probably be taken to Lisbon tomorrow.

The police this morning recovered two more of the sacks that were stolen, and the mayor now has six sacks of flour in his possession.

Officer McMillan this morning arrested Charles Geary upon a charge of disorderly conduct and using profane language preferred by Mrs. McConnell, of Locust alley. Geary pleaded guilty to the charge, was fined $9.60, paid it and was released.

Several days ago a dog bit the son of Mrs. Patrick Nolan, Fifth street, and complaint was made to Mayor Bough. He sent an officer after the dog. It was captured, taken to the West End burial ground and in a few minutes it was among the missing.

THE RACE MEET.

Hale Has Returned From a Trip to Canton, Alliance, Lisbon and Salem.

George Hale spent yesterday in Alliance, Canton, Salem and Lisbon in the interests of the bicycle meet to be held here next week. There will be a large number of people here from these cities, and the main interest is in the match race between W. H. Stevenson, of Detroit, and Paul McLain, of Pittsburg. McLain has been substituted for Lester Wilson, who has been appointed by Charles Gerloch of the racing board, to represent the United States at the international meet to be held at Montreal.

SAYS HILL IS MISTAKEN.

Pittsburg Hotel Clerk Insists Detroit Man Can't Be Allen.

Louis A. Wiseburg, the Pittsburg hotel clerk who went to Detroit and failed to identify the prisoner, John R. Davis, as C. E. Allen, thinks Attorney Walter B. Hill was mistaken in saying Davis was Allen beyond a doubt.

Wiseburg says: "I am positive Davis is not the man wanted here or in East Liverpool, and the statement of the Detroit sheriff has doubly confirmed my opinion. When Allen left here April 21 his face was as smooth as a smelt. Nine days later he was in the Detroit jail wearing a heavy moustache. Everybody knows that it is a physical impossibility for a man to develop a luxurious moustache in nine days."

FLASHLIGHTS IN A STEEPLE.

A Chicago Baptist Church Has a Novel Substitute For Chimes.

The steeple of Immanuel Baptist church, Michigan avenue and Thirty third street, in Chicago, has been provided with two are lamps that alternately flash brilliant lights. The beacon can be seen far out on the lake, and it is hoped by the church authorities that it will be the means of guiding many a mariner into port, says the Chicago Inter Ocean.

"We have been struggling for this result for four years," said the Rev. Johnston Myers, pastor of the church. "It is, after all, the symbol of the church, 'God is light; in him there is no darkness.' We have hesitated because the theaters were already the monopolizers of the scheme, but now we put even them in the background, for they have no steeple. When I was in Cincinnati, I had an electric arch erected over the pavement in front of the church, and the plan was extremely successful. People passing by stopped and wondered if some new theater or other resort had opened. Then they came in, and that is where the good begins. I hope some such result may be our fortune with this plan." The lights will be in operation every night in the week.

A Pretty Little Story.

The prettiest child story that I have seen lately is in French.

A mother tells her little girl that because she has been naughty she will not kiss her for a week. Before two days have gone by the child's lips hunger so for her mother's kiss that she begs her not to punish her any more.

The mother says: "No, my dear. I told you that I should not kiss you, and I must keep my word."

"But, mamma, mamma," says the little girl, "would it be breaking your word if you should kiss me just once tonight when I'm asleep?"—Boston Transcript.

Not to Be Sat Down On.

"One of those little chickens won't mind the old hen at all. It runs about by itself and doesn't pay any attention to her clucks."

"I don't really blame the poor little thing. It's one that was hatched in an incubator."—Chicago Tribune.

Words That Live.

"When a man pays a woman a compliment, it is said that she never forgets him."

"That's not exactly the way of it. She sometimes forgets the man, but she always remembers the compliment."—Chicago Record.

HAVE A HEARING TOMORROW

Stewart, Gourley and Jenkins, Charged With Stealing Flour, Pleaded Not Guilty, Waive an Examination and Are Held For Court--Geary Gets $9.60.

Newton Croxall was arraigned this morning before Mayor Bough, charged by Officer McMillan with holding up Miss Minnie and Miss Lida Shaffer last Saturday evening and taking from them a gold watch and chain valued at $42, a gold ring worth $3 and money to the amount of $6. Croxall promptly pleaded not guilty to the charge and tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock was set for hearing the case. He was held under $1,000 bail and is still in jail.

George Stewart, Ike Gourley and James Jenkins were arraigned this morning on a charge of breaking into a car and stealing eight sacks of flour, valued at $4.40, and belonging to Fitzgerald Bros. They all pleaded not guilty, but waived a preliminary examination and were bound over to court in the sum of $350 each. They will probably be taken to Lisbon tomorrow.

The police this morning recovered two more of the sacks that were stolen, and the mayor now has six sacks of flour in his possession.

Officer McMillan this morning arrested Charles Geary upon a charge of disorderly conduct and using profane language preferred by Mrs. McConnell, of Locust alley. Geary pleaded guilty to the charge, was fined $9.60, paid it and was released.

Several days ago a dog bit the son of Mrs. Patrick Nolan, Fifth street, and complaint was made to Mayor Bough. He sent an officer after the dog. It was captured, taken to the West End burial ground and in a few minutes it was among the missing.

Pittsburg Hotel Clerk Insists Detroit Man Can't Be Allen.

Louis A. Wiseburg, the Pittsburg hotel clerk who went to Detroit and failed to identify the prisoner, John R. Davis, as C. E. Allen, thinks Attorney Walter B. Hill was mistaken in saying Davis was Allen beyond a doubt.

Wiseburg says: "I am positive Davis is not the man wanted here or in East Liverpool, and the statement of the Detroit sheriff has doubly confirmed my opinion. When Allen left here April 21 his face was as smooth as a smelt. Nine days later he was in the Detroit jail wearing a heavy moustache. Everybody knows that it is a physical impossibility for a man to develop a luxurious moustache in nine days."

FLASHLIGHTS IN A STEEPLE.

A Chicago Baptist Church Has a Novel Substitute For Chimes.

The steeple of Immanuel Baptist church, Michigan avenue and Thirty third street, in Chicago, has been provided with two are lamps that alternately flash brilliant lights. The beacon can be seen far out on the lake, and it is hoped by the church authorities that it will be the means of guiding many a mariner into port, says the Chicago Inter Ocean.

"We have been struggling for this result for four years," said the Rev. Johnston Myers, pastor of the church. "It is, after all, the symbol of the church, 'God is light; in him there is no darkness.' We have hesitated because the theaters were already the monopolizers of the scheme, but now we put even them in the background, for they have no steeple. When I was in Cincinnati, I had an electric arch erected over the pavement in front of the church, and the plan was extremely successful. People passing by stopped and wondered if some new theater or other resort had opened. Then they came in, and that is where the good begins. I hope some such result may be our fortune with this plan." The lights will be in operation every night in the week.

A Pretty Little Story.

The prettiest child story that I have seen lately is in French.

A mother tells her little girl that because she has been naughty she will not kiss her for a week. Before two days have gone by the child's lips hunger so for her mother's kiss that she begs her not to punish her any more.

The mother says: "No, my dear. I told you that I should not kiss you, and I must keep my word."

"But, mamma, mamma," says the little girl, "would it be breaking your word if you should kiss me just once tonight when I'm asleep?"—Boston Transcript.

Not to Be Sat Down On.

"One of those little chickens won't mind the old hen at all. It runs about by itself and doesn't pay any attention to her clucks."

"I don't really blame the poor little thing. It's one that was hatched in an incubator."—Chicago Tribune.

It would be a queer Democratic platform that didn't denounce something as unconstitutional. That's their last standby in every argument.

COLUMBIANA county delegates to the Democratic state convention will go uninstructed. Mr. McLean will please make a note in his check book.

THE TOWNSHIP TRUSTEES.

The semi-annual statement of the township trustees published yesterday shows the financial end of their work but the countless benefactions accomplished with the small amount of cash expended can only be guessed at by outsiders. The trustees deserve well of the community.

A DEMOCRATIC PLATFORM.

The county Democracy built their Wellsville platform in the usual Democratic way. Picking up a Republican plank they decided they didn't want one like that and left the hole unplanked. When they got through they had a beautiful array of holes where planks might have been put but as they didn't like the Republican lumber they didn't have any platform.

A TECHNICAL SCHOOL.

Mr. Baum's suggestion that a pottery technical school might be established in connection with the proposed Carnegie library will be of service if it only results in the discussion of the advantages of such a school. An institution of this kind, even apart from the library, would be of great benefit to the city. A suggestion from another correspondent that courses as suggested by Mr. Baum might be added to the high school is also worth discussion.

PUBLIC DUTY.

The election of incompetent men to council, due directly to the neglect of the taxpayers to take sufficient interest to select good men, results not alone in immediate inconvenience to the citizens, but also injures the city abroad. A town with a reckless council and an exorbitant tax rate is shunned by new enterprises and prospective residents. Level headed men with business ability and a certain amount of capacity for affairs are the men needed to run the business of a municipality. Pothouse politicians, who use their official power for personal purposes, are the result of neglect of duty on the part of voters. Yet they may be said to be truly representative of the community, for their neglect of the city's interests is only parallel to and the result of the neglect of their constituents in permitting them to be elected. The stream rises no higher than its source. East Liverpool voters promise, however, to remedy this the next time by doing their full duty and seeing that men are elected to council who will do their duty also.

IN MEMORIAM.

Colonel A. L. Hawkins is dead, and the whole nation mourns. God be with his dear ones in their Pennsylvania home. God be with wife and daughter and with his two gallant sons, Clyde and Frank, officers in the regular army.

Colonel A. L. Hawkins commanded the Tenth for over twenty years. He was elected and re-elected without opposition on each occasion, no man desiring to enter the contest against him. The writer served with him for sixteen years, as private, corporal, sergeant, color bearer and captain, and knew him and loved him well. He was the friend of the private and of the officer. All he asked was that duty should be well performed. He was a strict disciplinarian, but tempered justice with mercy. He was fairly worshipped by the rank and file. He was a model soldier, brave almost to recklessness. The writer will remember his gallant conduct on the night of July 31, and the morning of Aug. 1, 1898, so long as memory holds sway. His bearing on August 13, 1898, upon entering Manila from the beach, under a hot fire from Spanish sharpshooters, was simply superb. He seemed unconscious of danger. His bravery in the after battles against the Filipinos won for him the praise of the nation. It is good to have served under such a commander; good to have carried Old Glory under his orders. The nation mourns for him. God bless and comfort his wife and children.

SOME SORE DELEGATES

Were Present at the Democratic Convention.

THEY CAME FROM THIS CITY

And Claimed Ex-Chairman Had Not Lived Up to Promises He Had Made—Another Delegate Objected to Stark County Renegades Running the Convention—List of Central Committeemen.

The delegates to the Democratic convention held yesterday at Wellsville before evening had all deserted the village.

While everything on the surface appeared to be harmonious yet it seems several of the Liverpool delegates were sore at Ex-Chairman Weisend who they claimed had not lived up to certain promises he had made and when the motion was made to substitute the name of J. N. Mahaffie, of St. Clair township, for J. W. Moore, of this city, as a delegate to the state convention, they voted for the St. Clair township man.

Another delegate after the convention adjourned said they didn't propose to have the Democracy of this county run by a renegade Democrat of Stark county, and for that reason B. Renkenberger, of Columbiana, was elected chairman of the county committee.

The selection of Renkenberger means that no more county conventions will be held in this end of the county for two years, as it was understood when the slate was prepared that he will call all conventions for Lisbon.

A list of the central committeemen handed to Chairman Renkenberger is as follows:

St. Clair—Orlo D. Smith, William T. Grim, J. W. Mahaffie.

East Palestine—West precinct, Joseph Herald, A. Mascher, Thomas Morrow; East precinct, John Mauke, H. Lawrence, Park Patterson.

Washington township—North precinct, William H. Gould, Charles Montooth, Thomas Dongan; South precinct, John D. Welday, David Black, Herman Graupner.

Knox township—John W. Grove, William Earnest, J. D. Scott.

Salem township—North precinct, Joseph Gottschale, Ed. D. Lanaghan, Will W. Long; south precinct, J. O. Hoffert, C. W. Kleinknecht, James Hennessy; Washingtonville precinct, C. E. Bertolette, J. L. Zimmerman, John Longbottom; Franklin precinct, H. B. Lodge, J. D. Crowther, Andrew Thomas.

Franklin township—Frank McRea, Thomas Carey, O. S. Bryan.

Fairfield township—T. A. Renkenberger, Joseph Sauerwein, S. W. Tidd, L. E. Snyder, C. V. Calvin, J. F. Jewell.

Wayne township—Alvin McCord, Anthony Rice, William J. Binsley.

Madison township—James B. Orr, James L. Moore, James C. Crawford.

Perry township—First ward, W. Honts, D. Whitacre, G. M. Funk; Second ward, J. E. Scott, A. W. Taylor, W. F. McCarty; Third ward, M. L. Edwards, James Rollins, George W. Hock; Fourth ward, D. D. Kirby, C. M. Meller, Percy Harris; township, John M. Sears, James P. Lannin, H. A. Tolerton.

Hanoverton—South precinct, E. P. Speidel, Charles Wernet, James E. Campbell; North precinct, W. F. Butz, C. D. Speidel, Samuel Humphrey.

Lisbon—Southwest precinct, John Robinson, John Heltzel, J. C. Vanfosan; Northwest precinct, John Lee, W. E. Fisher, H. S. Burnett; Northeast precinct, A. G. Graham, W. S. Potts, Harry March; Southeast precinct, Josiah Bennett, W. A. Hilt, J. A. Clunk.

TRAGEDY ON THE MIDWAY.

Tale of a Whisky Bottle, a Bench and a Few Other Things.

A funny incident was witnessed on the Midway yesterday afternoon. A lot of loafers were seated on a bench, supposed to be waiting to be provided with refreshments when some good hearted or generous creature came along. Some party upstairs got a whisky bottle, tied a string to it and lowered the bottle until it dangled in the faces of the crowd on the bench. One of the gang got mad, saying if he knew "who done that" he'd "put a face on him." A companion soothed him by saying the bottle would have been all right if it was full. Passersby noticed the suspended bottle, glanced at the loafers and snickered until the gang took a sneak.

HORRIBLE, IF TRUE!

A Wild Story From West Point, via Wellsville.

TWO DOGS KILLED A CHILD

And Were Discovered Devouring the Remains—Story Sounds Like a Fake and Cannot Be Confirmed at West Point or Vicinity.

A resident of Wellsville in the presence of one of our prominent city physicians said that a neighbor had informed him that a family living near West Point had gone out blackberrying, accompanied by their little child and two shepherd dogs. When they reached the blackberry patch they left the child on the edge of the patch guarded by the two dogs.

Upon their return they found, to their horror, that the child was dead and the dogs were devouring the remains.

We have made investigation from the best sources of information that we could find from West Point and other points near at hand and can find nothing confirmatory of the horrible story which appears upon the surface to be a fake. The man who would indulge in such a fake and attempt to foist it upon the public is second cousin to a graveyard ghoul.

And Claimed Ex-Chairman Had Not Lived Up to Promises He Had Made—Another Delegate Objected to Stark County Renegades Running the Convention—List of Central Committeemen.

The delegates to the Democratic convention held yesterday at Wellsville before evening had all deserted the village.

While everything on the surface appeared to be harmonious yet it seems several of the Liverpool delegates were sore at Ex-Chairman Weisend who they claimed had not lived up to certain promises he had made and when the motion was made to substitute the name of J. N. Mahaffie, of St. Clair township, for J. W. Moore, of this city, as a delegate to the state convention, they voted for the St. Clair township man.

Another delegate after the convention adjourned said they didn't propose to have the Democracy of this county run by a renegade Democrat of Stark county, and for that reason B. Renkenberger, of Columbiana, was elected chairman of the county committee.

The selection of Renkenberger means that no more county conventions will be held in this end of the county for two years, as it was understood when the slate was prepared that he will call all conventions for Lisbon.

A list of the central committeemen handed to Chairman Renkenberger is as follows:

TRAGEDY ON THE MIDWAY.

Tale of a Whisky Bottle, a Bench and a Few Other Things.

A funny incident was witnessed on the Midway yesterday afternoon. A lot of loafers were seated on a bench, supposed to be waiting to be provided with refreshments when some good hearted or generous creature came along. Some party upstairs got a whisky bottle, tied a string to it and lowered the bottle until it dangled in the faces of the crowd on the bench. One of the gang got mad, saying if he knew "who done that" he'd "put a face on him." A companion soothed him by saying the bottle would have been all right if it was full. Passersby noticed the suspended bottle, glanced at the loafers and snickered until the gang took a sneak.

Can Well Afford It.

We congratulate our nearby Ohio neighbors of Steubenville and East Liverpool on having secured a gift of fifty thousand dollars each for public library buildings. The arguments made for the preference was that Andrew Carnegie had lived for a time in each of these towns. It carried. Mr. Carnegie is not one to forget his early days and he has responded generously. The cities named can well afford to assume the cost and trouble of management in order to secure such benefits.—Pittsburg Home Monthly.

The NEWS REVIEW for news.

HORRIBLE, IF TRUE!

A Wild Story From West Point, via Wellsville.

TWO DOGS KILLED A CHILD

And Were Discovered Devouring the Remains—Story Sounds Like a Fake and Cannot Be Confirmed at West Point or Vicinity.

A resident of Wellsville in the presence of one of our prominent city physicians said that a neighbor had informed him that a family living near West Point had gone out blackberrying, accompanied by their little child and two shepherd dogs. When they reached the blackberry patch they left the child on the edge of the patch guarded by the two dogs.

Upon their return they found, to their horror, that the child was dead and the dogs were devouring the remains.

We have made investigation from the best sources of information that we could find from West Point and other points near at hand and can find nothing confirmatory of the horrible story which appears upon the surface to be a fake. The man who would indulge in such a fake and attempt to foist it upon the public is second cousin to a graveyard ghoul.

The new books are placed in position as fast as possible, and the directors will soon have every book in the library catalogued.

LAWS FOR FILIPINOS.

Chinese Minister Talks of Natives and How to Rule Them.

EUROPEAN COUNTRIES INTERESTED

All Nations Are Watching United States Solve Oriental Problem. Under Conservative and Liberal Treatment Wu Ting Fang Says They Will Become Good Citizens.

Wu Ting Fang, China's minister to the United States, who is also imperial representative to the court of Spain, has returned to Washington from an official visit to Madrid. In all of the European countries that he passed through Mr. Wu says the greatest interest is manifested in the prospective disposition of the Philippines, says the Chicago Inter Ocean.

"The people of Spain, France and England realize, however," he declared, "that the United States has a hard nut to crack in the matter of the subjugation of the Philippines. The Filipino people are probably unlike any other nationality on earth, and consequently a distinct and peculiar manner of treatment is necessary, in any negotiations between them and a foreign people for the accomplishment of their sovereignty, to a nation so dissimilar to them in every characteristic."

"Perhaps if the people of the United States had the Spanish war to fight over again they would hesitate in a determination to hold these islands as an indemnity with the purpose of subduing the Filipinos, for, as every one knows, the struggle there has cost many valuable lives and many thousands of dollars. But now that they are in the conflict with the intention of conquering the natives, it would never do for the government to desist. The prize is many times worth the pain, and I am convinced that when peace shall have been completely established the prodigious value of the islands, both in a commercial sense and in respects too numerous to mention, will be fully appreciated by the American nation."

"It must be borne in mind, however, that in order to retain the islands without fomenting a repetition of the frequent disturbances which marked the sovereignty of Spain in the Philippines, the legislative and executive branches of the American government must enact and enforce a code of laws which will be in conformity with the manners, customs and temperament of the Filipino people. It would be an impossibility for the United States to extend its own statutes to the Filipinos as they now stand and maintain a peaceful and happy condition there."

"Laws must be enacted by the American congress to apply to the Filipinos exclusively, laws which are suitable and applicable even to a shade to the natives. It will be impossible for the people of the United States to proclaim their own laws and then attempt to make the Filipinos conform to them. They must gather the natives, study their habits and disposition and then frame laws to conform to the populace. That, in substance, is an economic axiom which is beyond controversy. During my residence in China I have come in contact with a great many of the Filipinos who have journeyed to the Chinese ports on commercial business. They are, as a rule, well educated, thrifty and gifted with natural intelligence. Under a conservative and liberal treatment they will, I believe, prove to be good citizens, worthy of admission to the United States."

"A wholesome proportion of the people there are Chinese. The Chinese of the Philippines, however, are unlike those which inhabit the United States. In and around Manila there are subjects of the emperor engaged in every channel of business and in every walk of life. There are merchants, expert artisans, professional men, business men and others following different pursuits from that of manual labor. There are many Chinese millionaires there, men from the most renowned, accomplished and aristocratic families of my native country. They have proved a considerable factor in the prosperity and richness of the islands, which was so greatly appreciated by the Spanish government, and they will continue to enhance the good commercial name of the islands under American control."

"For this reason I entertain the hope that the Chinese exclusion law now in operation in the United States will not be extended to the Philippines when the American government abolishes military law and provides a civil code for governing the islands. Our countrymen will be done a great injustice if it does so. The most casual observation to any one interested will convince him that the Chinese are a necessity to the Philippines and that their presence there, in numbers unlimited, will be a boon rather than a bane to the future of the archipelago. They are so dissimilar to the impression of the Chinese race which obtains in the United States that a comparison is difficult."

Electrical Prosperity.
From all parts of the country reports

are coming in of dividends declared by electric lighting and street railway companies. This encouraging and satisfactory state of things shows that the electrical industry is back again on its old basis, after the unsettling experiences of the last few years of financial and business depression. There is every indication that it will continue to hold this place indefinitely, for no form of industrial activity has greater or more stable earning power than the application of electricity to the various arts.—Electrical Review.

The Lambs For Wall Street.

The brassy, measly peddler who stands at the street corner selling brass shirt studs for 5 cents apiece and shouting that he "guarantees" them to be gold catches many a wandering fool. The "guarantee" is given by a man who never expects to see his customers again, and the customers never expect to trade with him a second time. But the word "guarantee" carries weight with it, and the fool and his money, now as ever, are soon parted.

Every day's mail brings me letters of inquiry regarding the stability of a set of Wall street sharks who offer to "guarantee" profits ranging from 10 to 100 per cent per month to all who will give up their good money and trust the sharpers to invest it in the maelstrom of speculation. Scarcely a week passes without the report in the newspapers of the exposure, the flight or arrest of one of these sharks. But the race of fools seems to be eternal, and it appears to be only necessary for the Wall street bunko man to take a new name and to hire desk-room in Wall street or one of its laterals to reap a new crop from a new line of customers.—Leslie's Weekly.

A Fish Mystery.

One strange feature of this sea life of the tropics is the regular recurrence of migratory swarms of fish of very small size that return in huge numbers year after year with such absolute regularity that the natives calculate on the event on a certain day in each year and even within an hour or two of the day. One such swarm of fish forms the occasion of an annual holiday and feast at Samoa. The fish is not unlike the whitebait for which the English Thames has so long been celebrated, and each year it arrives at Samoa on the same day in the month of October, remains for a day, or at the most two days, and then disappears entirely till the same day of the following year.

Why it comes or whence no curious naturalist has yet discovered, nor has anybody traced its onward course when it leaves the Samoan group, but the fact is unquestionable that suddenly, without notice, the still waters of the lagoon which surround each island within the fringing reef become alive with millions of fishes, passing through them for a single day and night and then disappearing for a year as though they had never come.—Lippincott's.

Chicago Modesty.

"Chicago beats the world," announced the tall, slim traveling man after he had taken a late lunch in the hotel cafe. "It claims everything and concedes nothing. A novice would be made to think over there that Chicago exploited the universe, stocked it, watered the stock, issued half a dozen series of bonds and ran it ever since."

"What do you think I went up against in that town last winter? I was coming out of one of the theaters when a cadaverous looking genius with ten inch hair asked me if I was a lawyer. I humored him to learn what his game was. 'Well, sir,' he continued, 'you have a chance to make a fortune. You have seen this play, strong on the stage and strong in the box office. It's superb, yet it's a bald faced, unmitigated, cold blooded plagiarism. I wrote it, every word of it. Not a situation, climax or sentence is changed. Go after the author for damages, and I'll give you half.'"

"I dodged through the crowd ahead of us and made my escape."

"What was the play?"

"The Rivals."—Detroit Free Press.

A Newsboy's Triumph.

A pretty young lady dropped her dainty lace handkerchief at a State street corner the other afternoon. A dapper young man and a newsboy both saw it drop and simultaneously made a grab for it, and each got a corner.

"Let go; I've got it," whispered the fellow to the boy.

"Let go yourself!" shouted the newsy. "I've got it."

While the man was apparently whispering a bribe to the boy the latter suddenly jerked the handkerchief out of his hands and handed it to the smiling girl, with the remark:

"Dat guy wanted to make a mash, I guess, but I caught de snuffer first."

The crowd laughed, and the "guy" suddenly moved on.—Chicago News.

One of the Directors.

"Impossible," exclaimed the caller to the proud mother. "I can't believe that your son, who has only been in the employ of that great corporation for six months, is already a director."

"Well, I can. James is a splendid penman, and here is the news in his last letter." He had just finished directing 10,000 circulars.—Detroit Free Press.

WIRELESS TORPEDOES.

Deadly Weapons Steered From Shore With No Material Connection.

Contemporaneous with the sitting of the international peace commission comes the announcement of a new invention by which torpedoes are to be rendered more deadly in modern warfare than heretofore. The invention, due to Messrs. Walter Jamieson and John Trotter, consists in utilizing the "etherial" or "Hertzian" waves, which are the basis of wireless telegraphy, as a means of steering and controlling torpedoes on their deadly missions.

The apparatus is made in several forms, which differ principally in the means by which the current induced by the waves is applied to the steering mechanism. The best arrangement consists of a coil of iron wire or "solenoid" that becomes magnetic on receiving the etherial waves, and is thus rendered capable of sucking into itself a magnet, the motion of which brings about any required change in the steering gear of the torpedo. The latter is fitted with two rods, which project above the water and serve as "receivers"—that is, means of collecting the waves. Each of the rods is in connection with a coil of the type described, one on the right of the torpedo and one on the left, and, according as the right hand or the left hand rod absorbs the waves, so the torpedo is guided to the right or left.

The means adopted in using the apparatus is as follows, says the New York Times: Suppose that the torpedo is fired in the usual manner and that its course is seen to swerve from its proper path. From the torpedo boat electrical waves are immediately dispatched by the processes used in wireless telegraphy in such a manner that they only affect either the right hand or left hand coil controlling the helm, which is thus turned in any required direction and the original course of the torpedo reproduced. When this is accomplished, the electric waves are stopped and the helm flies back to the midship position.

Large models of the apparatus have been experimented with, and it is said that perfect success has been obtained under all possible conditions. Since the new method of guiding torpedoes is greatly superior to the old, which made use of electric wires, it is evident that the new invention will be an important factor in future naval warfare.

In all of the European countries that he passed through Mr. Wu says the greatest interest is manifested in the prospective disposition of the Philippines, says the Chicago Inter Ocean.

"The people of Spain, France and England realize, however," he declared, "that the United States has a hard nut to crack in the matter of the subjugation of the Filipinos. The Filipino people are probably unlike any other nationality on earth, and consequently a distinct and peculiar manner of treatment is necessary, in any negotiations between them and a foreign people for the accomplishment of their sovereignty, to a nation so dissimilar to them in every characteristic."

"Perhaps if the people of the United States had the Spanish war to fight over again they would hesitate in a determination to hold these islands as an indemnity with the purpose of subduing the Filipinos, for, as every one knows, the struggle there has cost many valuable lives and many thousands of dollars. But now that they are in the conflict with the intention of conquering the natives, it would never do for the government to desist. The prize is many times worth the pain, and I am convinced that when peace shall have been completely established the prodigious value of the islands, both in a commercial sense and in respects too numerous to mention, will be fully appreciated by the American nation."

"It must be borne in mind, however, that in order to retain the islands without fomenting a repetition of the frequent disturbances which marked the sovereignty of Spain in the Philippines, the legislative and executive branches of the American government must enact and enforce a code of laws which will be in conformity with the manners, customs and temperament of the Filipino people. It would be an impossibility for the United States to extend its own statutes to the Filipinos as they now stand and maintain a peaceful and happy condition there."

"Laws must be enacted by the American congress to apply to the Filipinos exclusively, laws which are suitable and applicable even to a shade to the natives. It will be impossible for the people of the United States to proclaim their own laws and then attempt to make the Filipinos conform to them. They must gather the natives, study their habits and disposition and then frame laws to conform to the populace. That, in substance, is an economic axiom which is beyond controversy. During my residence in China I have come in contact with a great many of the Filipinos who have journeyed to the Chinese ports on commercial business. They are, as a rule, well educated, thrifty and gifted with natural intelligence. Under a conservative and liberal treatment they will, I believe, prove to be good citizens, worthy of admission to the United States."

"A wholesome proportion of the people there are Chinese. The Chinese of the Philippines, however, are unlike those which inhabit the United States. In and around Manila there are subjects of the emperor engaged in every channel of business and in every walk of life. There are merchants, expert artisans, professional men, business men and others following different pursuits from that of manual labor. There are many Chinese millionaires there, men from the most renowned, accomplished and aristocratic families of my native country. They have proved a considerable factor in the prosperity and richness of the islands, which was so greatly appreciated by the Spanish government, and they will continue to enhance the good commercial name of the islands under American control."

"For this reason I entertain the hope that the Chinese exclusion law now in operation in the United States will not be extended to the Philippines when the American government abolishes military law and provides a civil code for governing the islands. Our countrymen will be done a great injustice if it does so. The most casual observation to any one interested will convince him that the Chinese are a necessity to the Philippines and that their presence there, in numbers unlimited, will be a boon rather than a bane to the future of the archipelago. They are so dissimilar to the impression of the Chinese race which obtains in the United States that a comparison is difficult."

Electrical Prosperity.

From all parts of the country reports

are coming in of dividends declared by electric lighting and street railway companies. This encouraging and satisfactory state of things shows that the electrical industry is back again on its old basis, after the unsettling experiences of the last few years of financial and business depression. There is every indication that it will continue to hold this place indefinitely, for no form of industrial activity has greater or more stable earning power than the application of electricity to the various arts.—Electrical Review.

The Lamb For Wall Street.

The brassy, measly peddler who stands at the street corner selling brass shirt studs for 5 cents apiece and shouting that he "guarantees" them to be gold catches many a wandering fool. The "guarantee" is given by a man who never expects to see his customers again, and the customers never expect to trade with him a second time. But the word "guarantee" carries weight with it, and the fool and his money, now as ever, are soon parted.

Every day's mail brings me letters of inquiry regarding the stability of a set of Wall street sharks who offer to "guarantee" profits ranging from 10 to 100 per cent per month to all who will give up their good money and trust the sharpers to invest it in the maelstrom of speculation. Scarcely a week passes without the report in the newspapers of the exposure, the flight or arrest of one of these sharks. But the race of fools seems to be eternal, and it appears to be only necessary for the Wall street bunko man to take a new name and to hire desk-room in Wall street or one of its laterals to reap a new crop from a new line of customers.—Leslie's Weekly.

A Fish Mystery.

One strange feature of this sea life of the tropics is the regular recurrence of migratory swarms of fish of very small size that return in huge numbers year after year with such absolute regularity that the natives calculate on the event on a certain day in each year and even within an hour or two of the day. One such swarm of fish forms the occasion of an annual holiday and feast at Samoa. The fish is not unlike the whitebait for which the English Thames has so long been celebrated, and each year it arrives at Samoa on the same day in the month of October, remains for a day, or at the most two days, and then disappears entirely till the same day of the following year.

Why it comes or whence no curious naturalist has yet discovered, nor has anybody traced its onward course when it leaves the Samoan group, but the fact is unquestionable that suddenly, without notice, the still waters of the lagoon which surround each island within the fringing reef become alive with millions of fishes, passing through them for a single day and night and then disappearing for a year as though they had never come.—Lippincott's.

Chicago Modesty.

"Chicago beats the world," announced the tall, slim traveling man after he had taken a late lunch in the hotel cafe. "It claims everything and concedes nothing. A novice would be made to think over there that Chicago exploited the universe, stocked it, watered the stock, issued half a dozen series of bonds and ran it ever since."

"What do you think I went up against in that town last winter? I was coming out of one of the theaters when a cadaverous looking genius with ten inch hair asked me if I was a lawyer. I humored him to learn what his game was. 'Well, sir,' he continued, 'you have a chance to make a fortune. You have seen this play, strong on the stage and strong in the box office. It's superb, yet it's a bald faced, unmitigated, cold blooded plagiarism. I wrote it, every word of it. Not a situation, climax or sentence is changed. Go after the author for damages, and I'll give you half.'"

A Newsboy's Triumph.

A pretty young lady dropped her dainty lace handkerchief at a State street corner the other afternoon. A dapper young man and a newsboy both saw it drop and simultaneously made a grab for it, and each got a corner.

"Let go; I've got it," whispered the fellow to the boy.

"Let go yourself!" shouted the newsy. "I've got it."

While the man was apparently whispering a bribe to the boy the latter suddenly jerked the handkerchief out of his hands and handed it to the smiling girl, with the remark:

"Dat guy wanted to make a mash, I guess, but I caught de snuffer first."

The crowd laughed, and the "guy" suddenly moved on.—Chicago News.

WIRELESS TORPEDOES.

Deadly Weapons Steered From Shore With No Material Connection.

Contemporaneous with the sitting of the international peace commission comes the announcement of a new invention by which torpedoes are to be rendered more deadly in modern warfare than heretofore. The invention, due to Messrs. Walter Jamieson and John Trotter, consists in utilizing the "etherial" or "Hertzian" waves, which are the basis of wireless telegraphy, as a means of steering and controlling torpedoes on their deadly missions.

The apparatus is made in several forms, which differ principally in the means by which the current induced by the waves is applied to the steering mechanism. The best arrangement consists of a coil of iron wire or "solenoid" that becomes magnetic on receiving the etherial waves, and is thus rendered capable of sucking into itself a magnet, the motion of which brings about any required change in the steering gear of the torpedo. The latter is fitted with two rods, which project above the water and serve as "receivers"—that is, means of collecting the waves. Each of the rods is in connection with a coil of the type described, one on the right of the torpedo and one on the left, and, according as the right hand or the left hand rod absorbs the waves, so the torpedo is guided to the right or left.

The means adopted in using the apparatus is as follows, says the New York Times: Suppose that the torpedo is fired in the usual manner and that its course is seen to swerve from its proper path. From the torpedo boat electrical waves are immediately dispatched by the processes used in wireless telegraphy in such a manner that they only affect either the right hand or left hand coil controlling the helm, which is thus turned in any required direction and the original course of the torpedo reproduced. When this is accomplished, the electric waves are stopped and the helm flies back to the midship position.

Large models of the apparatus have been experimented with, and it is said that perfect success has been obtained under all possible conditions. Since the new method of guiding torpedoes is greatly superior to the old, which made use of electric wires, it is evident that the new invention will be an important factor in future naval warfare.

LAWS FOR FILIPINOS.

Chinese Minister Talks of Natives and How to Rule Them.

EUROPEAN COUNTRIES INTERESTED

All Nations Are Watching United States Solve Oriental Problem. Under Conservative and Liberal Treatment Wu Ting Fang Says They Will Become Good Citizens.

Wu Ting Fang, China's minister to the United States, who is also imperial representative to the court of Spain, has returned to Washington from an official visit to Madrid. In all of the European countries that he passed through Mr. Wu says the greatest interest is manifested in the prospective disposition of the Philippines, says the Chicago Inter Ocean.

A Dollar Sells For $1,000.

A. Altman, clerk in a leading dry goods house at Racine, Wis., recently received a silver dollar dated 1804 in payment for goods. He has sold the coin for $1,000. Altman sent the coin to Chicago, where experts pronounced it genuine, and it readily sold at the price named. The person who gave the dollar for the goods is not known.

UNION LABELS.

It should be a deep-rooted principle of all union workmen and union sympathizers, and particularly those members of the different organizations of East Liverpool, to buy nothing but Union Label goods, in preference to all others. Splendid Charge Led by the General on the Filipinos.

ADVANCING ON SAN FERNANDO.

How Insurgents Were Driven From the Trenches by Brave Kansas Men—General Funston Receives a Wound—On a Scouting Trip With Major Bell.

John T. McCutcheon, the Chicago Record's Manila correspondent, writing under date of May 7 about our army's advance on San Fernando, says:

Santo Tomas is peculiarly situated. The town is at least a mile in a westerly direction from the railway, and the river runs south of the town. Between the railway and Santo Tomas is a swampy stretch of uncultivated ground, which makes a direct communication with the track impracticable. In consequence of this the road reaching the railway runs off in a northerly diagonal direction, intersecting the railway about a mile beyond the bridge. At the intersection stands the railway station and freighthouse, with a cluster of nipa houses in the bamboo woods just south of the station, while beyond for 1,000 yards is a broad, open ricefield. San Fernando lies only three miles northwest, along the railway, from the Santo Tomas station, and as it was then the Filipino capital a hard fight was confidently expected to await our troops before taking it.

On the afternoon of May 4 the troops began advancing from the Santo Tomas bridge toward the station. From all indications it might have been supposed that there was not an insurgent within miles. A gigantic trench, very recently built, was passed, and a huge breastwork across the railway track about 1,200 yards south of the station gave no hostile sound as the soldiers advanced and peacefully climbed over it. Down in the depression on each side ran long, serpentine rifle pits, admirably designed to defeat a flanking fire. It must have taken days to dig them, and yet there wasn't a shot fired from them.

Colonel Funston, with four companies of Kansas men, were in advance, and the rest of the brigade was crossing the bridge some distance below. Funston pushed on through a strip of bamboo trees and, keeping his men down behind the high roadbed of the railway on the left side, got the command up by the freighthouse, where his position covered a low line of earthworks 600 yards off to the right. There was no firing at the time. Some of the soldiers had come up the railway from the rear and were hunting a well among the nipa houses where drinking water could be had. They branched off along the road running across the track to the right and succeeded in finding a good well at the farther edge of the trees. Ten or 15 were clustered there filling their canteens and drinking away the thirst that by this time was nearly maddening. Caution and fear of bullets were lost in their eagerness to quench their thirst, and the group carelessly exposed at the well drew a sudden and totally unexpected fire from the trenches in the field near by.

At the first indication that the trench was occupied Colonel Funston began firing steady volleys along its shallow rim. Several of the men near the well edged over and joined the firing party at the freighthouse, but it was remarkable to see that even under the fierce fire of the insurgents other soldiers came into the bullet zone to get the drink of water that they craved so keenly. For nearly half an hour the fight raged savagely. General MacArthur was moving up more troops as quickly as possible, and General Wheaton and his staff had reached the position held by Funston. There was no way of knowing how many insurgents were behind the trench or what forces the woods beyond might conceal. Colonel Funston was shot through the left hand at this time and was suffering much from the wound. Then in the heat of the action occurred one of those picturesque charges which are rarely seen outside of paintings—a gallant rush, which proved to be one of the most dashing and thrilling incidents of the campaign.

General Wheaton whipped out his revolver, and, waving it above his head, yelled in that thunderous voice of his, "Come on, boys; follow me!" and away he went in a mad rush out into the bullet swept field. Hot after him, racing in a frenzy of enthusiasm, came his staff and Colonel Funston and every one of the men within four Kansas companies. Out from the well ran the soldiers who had been crouching behind the little protected places, and the field was a wild confusion of flying figures. The men were shooting as they ran and cheering as they shot. Down across the plowed field they charged, yelling like demons, with Wheaton on ahead and Funston, with his hand in a rough sling, coming hot behind.

It appeared that the insurgents would never begin to run, for as the line of yelling Kansans came down on them they stuck to their trench with the desperate courage of men who fight with certain death coming like a whirlwind to strike them down. They held tight until our soldiers were within 200 yards of the trench, and then terror overtook them and they tried to flee. Their firing had slackened until only a few shots were sent back as they ran. One native paused to shoot, and a Kansas man drew a bead on him and shot him down. The American officers were using their revolvers, and we could see the rebels dropping. Most of them reached the woods beyond, but behind the trench and on the upward slope on the other side there were 13 dead ones left as silent testimony to our soldiers' marksmanship. Many were found wounded and were afterward taken up to the freighthouse for treatment. Less than ten Americans were wounded, and only two were killed. That action ended the advance for the day.

One of the most important and necessary components of an invading army is the corps of scouts. Major Bell is the chief of the scouts in General MacArthur's division. The part he plays in the great military machine is to go on ahead of the army until he is shot at or until he sees the enemy established in their defenses. Then he returns with his report and is generally sent with the advancing troops to point out where caution is to be observed and where the men must expect the fighting to begin.

San Fernando was supposed to be very strongly defended. The meager information that could be obtained led General MacArthur to expect a stiff fight before it could be taken. There were rumors of artillery being placed to command the roads leading to it and others to the effect that several thousand riflemen were to make a desperate stand to prevent the Americans taking the city. It was the largest and finest city north of Manila, the seat of the Filipino government, and the natural assumption was that the insurgents could not afford to lose it on account of its sentimental significance. On the night of May 4 it was announced at the general headquarters that no movement would be made on the city until the morning of May 6. General MacArthur ordered Major Bell to take a small scouting party the following morning, the 5th, and, if possible, determine how great a force was in San Fernando and what disposition was made of it. At 6 o'clock the start was made. Major Bell, Lieutenant Mead, 15 soldiers and 3 correspondents, Bass, Keen and myself, composed the party. The major, the lieutenant and an orderly were mounted, but the remaining members were on foot. When the party, numbering 20, 15 armed with Krag-Jorgensen and the rest with revolvers, got as far as the American outposts, a halt was made. Thenceforth extreme caution was necessary. First, the leaders directed half the soldiers to move slowly forward in the shelter of the trees, along one side of the road and the other half to take a similar position on the other side.

"Now, you men must understand me. I don't want a shot fired. If they fire on us get in what protection you can, and don't, under any circumstances, fire unless you simply have to. I don't want the insurgents to see us, either. Keep in the shadow of those trees, and if you have to get into the road be careful to keep out of the center. Now, I'm going forward. We'll leave these three horses with you," indicating the correspondents, "for we must go on ahead. You bring them on about 200 yards to our rear; for if anybody is wounded we'll have to use a horse to get him to the rear. You must observe the strictest caution and keep as close into the trees as you can."

After these businesslike preparations the men disappeared in the trees lining the road and moved on ahead. A slight bend presently revealed a long, straight stretch into the city of San Fernando. About three-quarters of a mile down this stretch was a very heavy breastwork crossing the road, and behind it were some nipa houses. Part of the distance was well lined with scrubby trees, which concealed the members of our party from view. Occasionally Major Bell was observed a short distance ahead peering through the leaves and fixing his fieldglasses on the breastwork ahead. There was no sign of life about it.

Our party would advance a hundred yards, then pause for nearly 15 minutes with glasses studying every clump of bushes and everything ahead that could conceal a man. By degrees the scouts worked their way up to within 300 yards of the breastworks, where an open field was reached, and consequently no further advance could be made undiscovered. The horses were tied in a clump of bushes, and we edged up to the limit of the trees. At this time an insurgent officer was seen riding down the road leading from San Fernando to the breastworks, the extension of which we were on. He seemed unconscious of the nearness of our party and made no attempt at concealment. As he reached the breastworks he paused, and several figures were seen talking to him. Then he deliberately rode back toward San Fernando. After some minutes Major Bell showed himself in the road, feeling that at such short range the insurgents would be tempted to fire. But there wasn't a sound, and, aside from our party, not a human being could be seen.

The city of San Fernando, scarcely one-third of a mile away, was peaceful and quiet. Once more Major Bell walked across the road in full view, and Mead leisurely followed him. Several times this was repeated, but it drew no hostile shot from the fortresslike warehouses or the heavy breastwork just ahead. Little by little the scouts edged down the side of the road. Presently we were all out in the little open field in front of the breastworks. The leaders were within 100 yards of it, and the rest were scattered in a long, loose string behind. Every man was avoiding getting bunched with the others. Now the distance shrank to 50 yards, and still no sign. By this time it was reasonably certain that the breastwork had been abandoned. Twenty-five yards, ten yards, and then the foremost men climbed up and over. There wasn't a soul in sight, for the men we had seen had quietly crept off to the rear. The splendid defense, a high bank of earth, with bamboo loopholes for hundreds of men, had been completely abandoned.

GILLMORE'S DIARY.

Extracts From It Give an Account of the Lieutenant's Imprisonment.

At the fall of the last Filipino capital, San Isidro, when Colonel Summers entered the city with the Oregon and Minnesota troops, Sergeant Black and Corporal Harding of Company I, with a squad of Oregon and Minnesota troops, entered the prison and found a cipher message written on the wall by Lieutenant Gillmore of the Yorktown stating in what part of the cell under the stone floor would be found a letter written by himself and a diary, says the New York Herald.

There was no signature to the diary, as it was broken off abruptly in the middle of a sentence. Several pages of the first part of the diary were missing. It is evident they referred to the writer's life from his capture on Jan. 27 to March 28, when the city of Malolos was taken by the Americans. The following are extracts from the diary without date:

"Men, women and children all fleeing from the advancing Americans. A couple of hours' march brought us to Quinga, where all the Spaniards and ourselves stopped for a rest in a convent. At 4 in the morning we were on the march again. About four hours' march brought us to the bank of a large river, and here we were ferried across in a large canoe. On the other side lay Baling, our resting place for the night. We were taken into a convent and put into a room about 6 by 10, with nothing to sleep on but the floor and a litter covered with blood. The sergeant of the guard was a young Spaniard, and he tried to make it as easy as possible for us, bringing us some rice and fish to eat.

"We saw many wounded here from the front. Next morning we were awakened by the natives throwing stones through the windows at us to see us move. Hundreds came to gaze at us through the door, including many priests. At about 9 o'clock we were started on the march again without breakfast. Many of the Spaniards were so sick that they could hardly walk, but the native guards struck them with their guns to make them move faster, shouting "Sigce!" all the time. That word I shall never forget, for it rang continually in my ears, sigce, sigce, like a man driving cattle. We were in a better condition than the Spaniards, so they put us ahead, but every once in awhile we had to stop and wait for the cazaderos. Eleven months of imprisonment, hunger and hard treatment had left them in poor condition to march on a dusty road in the broiling sun. A three hours' march brought us to San Rafael, right in the foothills. They fed us here on dry rice without salt or anything else."

Sufferings of the prisoners from hunger on the march northward to San Ardo, where they heard of a five days' armistice from some Spaniards, who gave them two silver dollars, are also recorded in the diary, which ends: "The five days passed slowly and heavily, although we had plenty to eat, all donations of the Spaniards, except four motas a day each and two measures of rice apiece given by the government. This alone would just about have kept body and soul together. We sang songs together to show that we were in good spirits."

Rothschild's Straw Plug Hat.

The other night the Hon. Walter Rothschild made his appearance crowned with a hat the like of which had never before been seen at Westminster, says the Westminster Gazette. The shape was that of the ordinary tall silk hat, but the material was light colored plaited straw, and, although his fellow members looked a little surprised at the innovation, envy of the coolness of the headgear was quite as strong as astonishment at the new member's courage.

Not a Laugh For Five Years.

The extremity of Dreyfus' misery could not be more forcibly told than by the statement that he has just laughed for the first time in five years. We do not often stop to think of the meaning and importance of laughter, but the mere conception of the state of mind which makes laughter impossible is horrible.—Providence Journal.

Outclassed.

She looks at me with proud disdain; I claim her love no more;
I ride the same old wheel that I have ridden heretofore;
She used to cheer me with her laugh as we together sped
Along the crowded boulevard, with heaven just ahead.

We used to ride off side by side along the shaded ways
That led us through the parks, and oft she gave me words of praise,
And every tree was blest that we sat 'neath in shine or rain,
And every road on which we sped became a lovers' lane.

The joy I had is gone! She smiles on some one else today!
I still ride forth upon my wheel, but hers is stored away;
I saw her yesterday beside a happy looking chap,
I had a puncture! They were perched upon an autotrap!

Any Time You Want at the Pole.

Those who are conversant with the use of globes know that all the meridians of longitude starting from the equator converge toward and meet at the pole. They know, too, that longitude signifies time, and that difference of longitude is difference in time. They know very well that when it is noon in London it is about 7 o'clock in the morning in Boston, and that when it is noon in San Francisco it is about a quarter past 3 in the afternoon in New York.

Now, as the meridian of London extends to the north pole, it necessarily ensues that when it is noon in the English capital it must also be noon at the north pole. In a similar manner when it is noon at Boston, or in San Francisco, or at Peking, or any other place situated in the northern hemisphere, it follows that it must also be noon at the pole, because all the meridians of those places unite at the north pole. Therefore it is noon all day long at the pole.

Thus there is an entire absence of time at the pole. But it would be just as correct to say that it is a place where there is a preponderance of time, for it is practically any time of day during the whole 24 hours, or indeed through the year. In fact, a resident at the north pole could make it any time of day he might choose to select, with the consciousness that it would be the right time.—Youth's Companion.

A Woman's Whim.

She was a woman who made a practice of being always amiable to the clerks in the shops, and there was one dry goods shop where she had traded for many years, and the clerks were like old friends. But there were some business changes, and a new firm made offers to the clerks who had been so long with the old firm that the woman had patronized, and they, almost to a man and woman, left. The lifelong patron of the shop was much incensed at this. It was not fair or right, she said, and in fact almost dishonorable.

So one day when she made a first visit to the new shop one of the old clerks who knew her well stepped forward to speak to her after the old cordial fashion. But, no, this mildest mannered of women turned her head away with a cold stare and passed on without recognition. She could not be cordial to any one who had acted so dishonorably. No explanation is offered of why she herself was in the new shop. It may have been just out of curiosity. Of course one can shop where one pleases.—New York Times.

A Lucky Bit of Tin.

Telling of a narrow escape from death which he had recently experienced, a railroad switchman said:

"I was leaning up against the end of that blue box car over there, thinking of what I was going to have for dinner, when I thought I saw a silver dollar lying in the street about ten feet away from me.

"I knew there was a shifter on the same track, but I thought it was down on the wharf at that time. I hadn't more than stepped away from the end of that car when the shifter bunted into it and drove it ahead about 20 feet. Say, suppose I hadn't seen that silver dollar and started for it. Where would I have been now? Yes, a man that is working around the cars has got to pay strict attention to business.

"Oh, I forgot to tell you that that silver dollar was only a round piece of tin, but it served its purpose just as well as the real thing could have done. I'm going to wear it on my watch chain for a charm. It ought to be better than a rabbit's foot."—Portland Express.

Eccentric Bride.

In a little country cottage near San Francisco an eccentric young heiress is spending the queerest honeymoon in the world. Helen K. Wilder of Honolulu always declared that when she should get married she would spend her honeymoon alone, says the New York World. A few weeks ago she married H. J. Craft in Honolulu and told him he had given her the opportunity to carry out her wish. The next day she sailed alone to San Francisco. She is now waiting for the month to elapse before going back to take up her wifely duties in Hawaii.

General MacArthur ordered Major Bell to take a small scouting party the following morning, the 5th, and, if possible, determine how great a force was in San Fernando and what disposition was made of it. At 6 o'clock the start was made. Major Bell, Lieutenant Mead, 15 soldiers and 3 correspondents, Bass, Keen and myself, composed the party. The major, the lieutenant and an orderly were mounted, but the remaining members were on foot. When the party, numbering 20, 15 armed with Krag-Jorgensen and the rest with revolvers, got as far as the American outposts, a halt was made. Thenceforth extreme caution was necessary. First, the leaders directed half the soldiers to move slowly forward in the shelter of the trees, along one side of the road and the other half to take a similar position on the other side.

"Now, you men must understand me. I don't want a shot fired. If they fire on us get in what protection you can, and don't, under any circumstances, fire unless you simply have to. I don't want the insurgents to see us, either. Keep in the shadow of those trees, and if you have to get into the road be careful to keep out of the center. Now, I'm going forward. We'll leave these three horses with you," indicating the correspondents, "for we must go on ahead. You bring them on about 200 yards to our rear; for if anybody is wounded we'll have to use a horse to get him to the rear. You must observe the strictest caution and keep as close into the trees as you can."

After these businesslike preparations the men disappeared in the trees lining the road and moved on ahead. A slight bend presently revealed a long, straight stretch into the city of San Fernando. About three-quarters of a mile down this stretch was a very heavy breastwork crossing the road, and behind it were some nipa houses. Part of the distance was well lined with scrubby trees, which concealed the members of our party from view. Occasionally Major Bell was observed a short distance ahead peering through the leaves and fixing his fieldglasses on the breastwork ahead. There was no sign of life about it.

Our party would advance a hundred yards, then pause for nearly 15 minutes with glasses studying every clump of bushes and everything ahead that could conceal a man. By degrees the scouts worked their way up to within 300 yards of the breastworks, where an open field was reached, and consequently no further advance could be made undiscovered. The horses were tied in a clump of bushes, and we edged up to the limit of the trees. At this time an insurgent officer was seen riding down the road leading from San Fernando to the breastworks, the extension of which we were on. He seemed unconscious of the nearness of our party and made no attempt at concealment. As he reached the breastworks he paused, and several figures were seen talking to him. Then he deliberately rode back toward San Fernando. After some minutes Major Bell showed himself in the road, feeling that at such short range the insurgents would be tempted to fire. But there wasn't a sound, and, aside from our party, not a human being could be seen.

The city of San Fernando, scarcely one-third of a mile away, was peaceful and quiet. Once more Major Bell walked across the road in full view, and Mead leisurely followed him. Several times this was repeated, but it drew no hostile shot from the fortresslike warehouses or the heavy breastwork just ahead. Little by little the scouts edged down the side of the road. Presently we were all out in the little open field in front of the breastworks. The leaders were within 100 yards of it, and the rest were scattered in a long, loose string behind. Every man was avoiding getting bunched with the others. Now the distance shrank to 50 yards, and still no sign. By this time it was reasonably certain that the breastwork had been abandoned. Twenty-five yards, ten yards, and then the foremost men climbed up and over. There wasn't a soul in sight, for the men we had seen had quietly crept off to the rear. The splendid defense, a high bank of earth, with bamboo loopholes for hundreds of men, had been completely abandoned.

GILLMORE'S DIARY.

Extracts From It Give an Account of the Lieutenant's Imprisonment.

At the fall of the last Filipino capital, San Isidro, when Colonel Summers entered the city with the Oregon and Minnesota troops, Sergeant Black and Corporal Harding of Company I, with a squad of Oregon and Minnesota troops, entered the prison and found a cipher message written on the wall by Lieutenant Gillmore of the Yorktown stating in what part of the cell under the stone floor would be found a letter written by himself and a diary, says the New York Herald.

There was no signature to the diary, as it was broken off abruptly in the middle of a sentence. Several pages of the first part of the diary were missing. It is evident they referred to the writer's life from his capture on Jan. 27 to March 28, when the city of Malolos was taken by the Americans. The following are extracts from the diary without date:

"Men, women and children all fleeing from the advancing Americans. A couple of hours' march brought us to Quinga, where all the Spaniards and ourselves stopped for a rest in a convent. At 4 in the morning we were on the march again. About four hours' march brought us to the bank of a large river, and here we were ferried across in a large canoe. On the other side lay Balingag, our resting place for the night. We were taken into a convent and put into a room about 6 by 10, with nothing to sleep on but the floor and a litter covered with blood. The sergeant of the guard was a young Spaniard, and he tried to make it as easy as possible for us, bringing us some rice and fish to eat.

"We saw many wounded here from the front. Next morning we were awakened by the natives throwing stones through the windows at us to see us move. Hundreds came to gaze at us through the door, including many priests. At about 9 o'clock we were started on the march again without breakfast. Many of the Spaniards were so sick that they could hardly walk, but the native guards struck them with their guns to make them move faster, shouting "Sigce!" all the time. That word I shall never forget, for it rang continually in my ears. Sigce, sigce, sigce, like a man driving cattle. We were in a better condition than the Spaniards, so they put us ahead, but every once in awhile we had to stop and wait for the cazadores. Eleven months of imprisonment, hunger and hard treatment had left them in poor condition to march on a dusty road in the broiling sun. A three hours' march brought us to San Rafael, right in the foothills. They fed us here on dry rice without salt or anything else."

Sufferings of the prisoners from hunger on the march northward to San Ardo, where they heard of a five days' armistice from some Spaniards, who gave them two silver dollars, are also recorded in the diary, which ends:

"The five days passed slowly and heavily, although we had plenty to eat, all donations of the Spaniards, except four motas a day each and two measures of rice apiece given by the government. This alone would just about have kept body and soul together. We sang songs together to show that we were in good spirits."

Rothschild's Straw Plug Hat.

The other night the Hon. Walter Rothschild made his appearance crowned with a hat the like of which had never before been seen at Westminster, says the Westminster Gazette. The shape was that of the ordinary tall silk hat, but the material was light colored plaited straw, and, although his fellow members looked a little surprised at the innovation, envy of the coolness of the headgear was quite as strong as astonishment at the new member's costume.

Not a Laugh For Five Years.

The extremity of Dreyfus' misery could not be more forcibly told than by the statement that he has just laughed for the first time in five years. Any Time You Want at the Pole.

Those who are conversant with the use of globes know that all the meridians of longitude starting from the equator converge toward and meet at the pole. They know, too, that longitude signifies time, and that difference of longitude is difference in time. They know very well that when it is noon in London it is about 7 o'clock in the morning in Boston, and that when it is noon in San Francisco it is about a quarter past 3 in the afternoon in New York.

Now, as the meridian of London extends to the north pole, it necessarily ensues that when it is noon in the English capital it must also be noon at the north pole. In a similar manner when it is noon at Boston, or in San Francisco, or at Peking, or any other place situated in the northern hemisphere, it follows that it must also be noon at the pole, because all the meridians of those places unite at the north pole. Therefore it is noon all day long at the pole.

Thus there is an entire absence of time at the pole. But it would be just as correct to say that it is a place where there is a preponderance of time, for it is practically any time of day during the whole 24 hours, or indeed through the year. In fact, a resident at the north pole could make it any time of day he might choose to select, with the consciousness that it would be the right time.—Youth's Companion.

A Woman's Whim.

She was a woman who made a practice of being always amiable to the clerks in the shops, and there was one dry goods shop where she had traded for many years, and the clerks were like old friends. But there were some business changes, and a new firm made offers to the clerks who had been so long with the old firm that the woman had patronized, and they, almost to a man and woman, left. The lifelong patron of the shop was much incensed at this. It was not fair or right, she said, and in fact almost dishonorable.

So one day when she made a first visit to the new shop one of the old clerks who knew her well stepped forward to speak to her after the old cordial fashion. But, no, this mildest mannered of women turned her head away with a cold stare and passed on without recognition. She could not be cordial to any one who had acted so dishonorably. No explanation is offered of why she herself was in the new shop. It may have been just out of curiosity. Of course one can shop where one pleases.—New York Times.

A Lucky Bit of Tin.

Telling of a narrow escape from death which he had recently experienced, a railroad switchman said: "I was leaning up against the end of that blue box car over there, thinking of what I was going to have for dinner, when I thought I saw a silver dollar lying in the street about ten feet away from me.

"I knew there was a shifter on the same track, but I thought it was down on the wharf at that time. I hadn't more than stepped away from the end of that car when the shifter bunted into it and drove it ahead about 20 feet. Say, suppose I hadn't seen that silver dollar and started for it. Where would I have been now? Yes, a man that is working around the cars has got to pay strict attention to business.

"Oh, I forgot to tell you that that silver dollar was only a round piece of tin, but it served its purpose just as well as the real thing could have done. I'm going to wear it on my watch chain for a charm. It ought to be better than a rabbit's foot."—Portland Express.

WHEATON'S BOLD DASH

Splendid Charge Led by the General on the Filipinos.

ADVANCING ON SAN FERNANDO.

How Insurgents Were Driven From the Trenches by Brave Kansas Men—General Funston Receives a Wound—On a Scouting Trip With Major Bell.

John T. McCutcheon, the Chicago Record's Manila correspondent, writing under date of May 7 about our army's advance on San Fernando, says:

Santo Tomas is peculiarly situated. The town is at least a mile in a westerly direction from the railway, and the river runs south of the town. Between the railway and Santo Tomas is a swampy stretch of uncultivated ground, which makes a direct communication with the track impracticable. In consequence of this the road reaching the railway runs off in a northerly diagonal direction, intersecting the bridge about a mile beyond the bridge. At the intersection stands the railway station and freighthouse, with a cluster of nipa houses in the bamboo woods just south of the station, while beyond for 1,000 yards is a broad, open ricefield. San Fernando lies only three miles northwest, along the railway, from the Santo Tomas station, and as it was then the Filipino capital a hard fight was confidently expected to await our troops before taking it.

On the afternoon of May 4 the troops began advancing from the Santo Tomas bridge toward the station. From all indications it might have been supposed that there was not an insurgent within miles. A gigantic trench, very recently built, was passed, and a huge breastwork across the railway track about 1,200 yards south of the station gave no hostile sound as the soldiers advanced and peacefully climbed over it. Down in the depression on each side ran long, serpentine rifle pits, admirably designed to defeat a flanking fire. It must have taken days to dig them, and yet there wasn't a shot fired from them.

Colonel Funston, with four companies of Kansas men, were in advance, and the rest of the brigade was crossing the bridge some distance below. Funston pushed on through a strip of bamboo trees and, keeping his men down behind the high roadbed of the railway on the left side, got the command up by the freighthouse, where his position covered a low line of earthworks 600 yards off to the right. There was no firing at the time. Some of the soldiers had come up the railway from the rear and were hunting a well among the nipa houses where drinking water could be had. They branched off along the road running across the track to the right and succeeded in finding a good well at the farther edge of the trees. Ten or 15 were clustered there filling their canteens and drinking away the thirst that by this time was nearly maddening. Caution and fear of bullets were lost in their eagerness to quench their thirst, and the group carelessly exposed at the well drew a sudden and totally unexpected fire from the trenches in the field near by.

At the first indication that the trench was occupied Colonel Funston began firing steady volleys along its shallow rim. Several of the men near the well edged over and joined the firing party at the freighthouse, but it was remarkable to see that even under the fierce fire of the insurgents other soldiers came into the bullet zone to get the drink of water that they craved so keenly. For nearly half an hour the fight raged savagely. General MacArthur was moving up more troops as quickly as possible, and General Wheaton and his staff had reached the position held by Funston. There was no way of knowing how many insurgents were behind the trench or what forces the woods beyond might conceal. Colonel Funston was shot through the left hand at this time and was suffering much from the wound. Then in the heat of the action occurred one of those picturesque charges which are rarely seen outside of paintings—a gallant rush, which proved to be one of the most dashing and thrilling incidents of the campaign.

General Wheaton whipped out his revolver, and, waving it above his head, yelled in that thunderous voice of his, "Come on, boys; follow me!" and away he went in a mad rush out into the bullet swept field. Hot after him, racing in a frenzy of enthusiasm, came his staff and Colonel Funston and every one of the men within four Kansas companies. Out from the well ran the soldiers who had been crouching behind the little protected places, and the field was a wild confusion of flying figures. The men were shooting as they ran and cheering as they shot. Down across the plowed field they charged, yelling like demons, with Wheaton on ahead and Funston, with his hand in a rough sling, coming hot behind.

It appeared that the insurgents would never begin to run, for as the line of yelling Kansans came down on them they stuck to their trench with the desperate courage of men who fight with certain death coming like a whirlwind to strike them down. They held tight until our soldiers were within 200 yards of the trench, and then terror overtook them and they tried to flee. Their firing had slackened until only a few shots were sent back as they ran. One native paused to shoot, and a Kansas man drew a bead on him and shot him down. The American officers were using their revolvers, and we could see the rebels dropping. Most of them reached the woods beyond, but behind the trench and on the upward slope on the other side there were 13 dead ones left as silent testimony to our soldiers' marksmanship. Many were found wounded and were afterward taken up to the freighthouse for treatment. Less than ten Americans were wounded, and only two were killed. That action ended the advance for the day.

One of the most important and necessary components of an invading army is the corps of scouts. Major Bell is the chief of the scouts in General MacArthur's division. The part he plays in the great military machine is to go on ahead of the army until he is shot at or until he sees the enemy established in their defenses. Then he returns with his report and is generally sent with the advancing troops to point out where caution is to be observed and where the men must expect the fighting to begin.

San Fernando was supposed to be very strongly defended. The meager information that could be obtained led General MacArthur to expect a stiff fight before it could be taken. There were rumors of artillery being placed to command the roads leading to it and others to the effect that several thousand riflemen were to make a desperate stand to prevent the Americans taking the city. It was the largest and finest city north of Manila, the seat of the Filipino government, and the natural assumption was that the insurgents could not afford to lose it on account of its sentimental significance. On the night of May 4 it was announced at the general headquarters that no movement would be made on the city until the morning of May 6. General MacArthur ordered Major Bell to take a small scouting party the following morning, the 5th, and, if possible, determine how great a force was in San Fernando and what disposition was made of it. At 6 o'clock the start was made. Major Bell, Lieutenant Mead, 15 soldiers and 3 correspondents, Bass, Keen and myself, composed the party. The major, the lieutenant and an orderly were mounted, but the remaining members were on foot. When the party, numbering 20, 15 armed with Krag-Jorgensen and the rest with revolvers, got as far as the American outposts, a halt was made. Thenceforth extreme caution was necessary. First, the leaders directed half the soldiers to move slowly forward in the shelter of the trees, along one side of the road and the other half to take a similar position on the other side.

"Now, you men must understand me. I don't want a shot fired. If they fire on us get in what protection you can, and don't, under any circumstances, fire unless you simply have to. I don't want the insurgents to see us, either. Keep in the shadow of those trees, and if you have to get into the road be careful to keep out of the center. Now, I'm going forward. We'll leave these three horses with you," indicating the correspondents, "for we must go on ahead. You bring them on about 200 yards to our rear; for if anybody is wounded we'll have to use a horse to get him to the rear. Bond papers are very deceptive. It is an easy matter for a dishonest printer to palm a cheap article on a customer as a good one. We just got in a cheap bond paper; got it because others were representing it as a good article and making over a hundred per cent. We are contented with a small profit and will give you this bond paper for less than you pay for common writing. We are going to tear things in the printing business for a while, and we won't do it at a loss either. We have added to our high grade stock the line handled by our competitors. We will give this stock for just what it is worth; about one-third less than you have been paying.

WINE OF CARDUI

A SURE MEDICINE.

I have been suffering from female weakness for four years, and have taken many medicines, but Wine of Cardui and Black-Draught have done more for me than anything else.

MRS. CAROLINE EVANS.

McELREE'S
Wine of Cardui

It is a mistake to take any and every kind of medicine when you are sick. There is danger in it. Most of the so-called cures for "female weakness" do nothing more than deaden the pain temporarily, and when the effect wears away the patient is weaker and sicker than before. It is never wise to take chances. You have only one life, and that is dear and precious. If you have any pain, ache, disorder or weakness in the feminine organs, nothing will help you like Wine of Cardui. It helps do away with morning sickness during the early stages of pregnancy, and modifies the pains of childbirth; recovery is rapid and future health is assured. The Wine is purely vegetable, being made of herbs whose medicinal properties act directly upon the organs of womanhood. It is a long-tried remedy, and has many years of success behind it. It is sure. Why take a chance medicine when you can get a sure medicine?

WINE OF CARDUI

A SURE MEDICINE.

HANDSON, VA., Dec. 31.
I have been suffering from female weakness for four years, and have taken many medicines, but Wine of Cardui and Black-Draught have done more for me than any thing else.

MRS. CAROLINE EVANS.

Wine of Cardui

It is a mistake to take any and every kind of medicine when you are sick. There is danger in it. Most of the so-called cures for "female weakness" do nothing more than deaden the pain temporarily, and when the effect wears away the patient is weaker and sicker than before. It is never wise to take chances. You have only one life, and that is dear and precious. If you have any pain, ache, disorder or weakness in the feminine organs, nothing will help you like Wine of Cardui. It helps do away with morning sickness during the early stages of pregnancy, and modifies the pains of childbirth; recovery is rapid and future health is assured. The Wine is purely vegetable, being made of herbs whose medicinal properties act directly upon the organs of womanhood. It is a long-tried remedy, and has many years of success behind it. It is sure. Why take a chance medicine when you can get a sure medicine?

Bond papers are very deceptive. It is an easy matter for a dishonest printer to palm a cheap article on a customer as a good one. We just got in a cheap bond paper; got it because others were representing it as a good article and making over a hundred per cent. We are contented with a small profit and will give you this bond paper for less than you pay for common writing. We are going to tear things in the printing business for a while, and we won't do it at a loss either. We have added to our high grade stock the line handled by our competitors. We will give this stock for just what it is worth; about one-third less than you have been paying.

The Cause of His Death Reported to Have Been Due to Cancer of the Bowels—His Illness Dated From the Battle of Malolos, When He Exposed Himself Almost Recklessly in the Disease-Breeding Climate—Impressive Funeral Services Followed, Conducted by the Regimental Chaplain, the Following Sunday—Remains Attended by a Guard of Honor For the Rest of the Voyage. Few Cases of Seasickness and Half a Dozen Cases of Dysentery Among the Men Aboard the Transport—One Man Will Be Operated on For Appendicitis.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 2.—The casket containing the remains of Colonel Hawkins was taken ashore today with ceremonies befitting Colonel Hawkins' rank. The remains of the dead commander will be sent to Pennsylvania for interment. Colonel Hawkins died on July 18, on board of the transport Senator enroute to this city with his regiment from Manila. His death occurred two days after the transport sailed from Yokohama. Cancer of the bowels was the cause of death. The remains were embalmed on board the ship and brought here for shipment to Pennsylvania. The ship bearing the regiment has arrived, bringing the sad news.

Flag at Half-Mast.

The Senator arrived with her flag at halfmast on account of the death of Colonel Hawkins.

The Senator sailed from Manila on July 1, with 38 officers and 721 enlisted men. The transport was at Nagasaki on July 15, when Colonel Hawkins was taken ill with cancer of the bowels, from which he had been a sufferer during the greater part of his campaign in the Philippines, and for which he had undergone treatment in the military hospital at Manila. His illness continued during the following day, July 16, when the Senator was at Yokohama, and two days later he passed away at sea.

Colonel Hawkins' illness dated from the battle of Malolos, when he exposed himself almost recklessly in the disease-breeding climate. He was respected and loved by every man of his command, and his death is deeply mourned by the troops. His body was placed in a hermetically sealed casket, and on the Sunday following his death impressive funeral services were conducted by the chaplain of the regiment, all of his men being in attendance.

The remains were placed in the stern of the vessel and lay in state, attended day and night by a guard of honor during the remainder of the voyage.

After the death of Colonel Hawkins, the command of the regiment was vested in Lieutenant Colonel Barnett, who, like the dead commander, is popular among the enlisted men, and made a good record in the war.

Of the 759 officers and men whom Colonel Barnett brought to San Francisco, three are privates in the Sixth artillery, U. S. A., and one is a member of the Nebraska regiment who was left behind at Yokohama when his companions sailed for this port on the Hancock. A dozen stowaways were also concealed in the hold and were soon brought to light after the Senator left Yokohama.

One Man a Victim of Appendicitis.

The Senator had a good trip from Japan. With the exception of the sad illness and death of the regimental commander there was no sickness aboard, barring a few cases of seasickness and half a dozen cases of dysentery. At sight of land, all the invalids were able to leave the bunks and line up on the main deck except one poor fellow who has developed symptoms of appendicitis and who will be operated upon in the hospital here.

When the Tenth Pennsylvania left for the Philippines last year the muster comprised 850 men. Twenty-four were killed in battle or died in the Manila hospital, and the rest of the sick and wounded, to the number of seven, are on the hospital ship Relief, which will probably arrive here within the next few days.

The quarantine officer boarded the Senator and after a careful inspection passed crew and passengers. The transport had dropped anchor off the Folsom Street wharf and it was decided that the regiment should not be landed until today. Under cover of darkness, however, two privates slipped off in a tug, dropping down by a rope which had been used to haul up two sacks of mail matter sent out by the postmaster to the regiment.

The privates who thus absented themselves without leave announced their intention of seeing the town last night and of rejoining the ranks when the regiment was lined up on the dock today. As the official committee on reception to the regiment will not arrive here from Philadelphia until this evening, the substitute committee appointed informally undertook that duty. A tug had been chartered for today with the expectation that the Senator would not arrive last night and arrangements made to go out to meet the transport with a band, stacks of flowers and tons of dainties for the soldiers. The premature appearance of the transport last evening, however, did not permit the carrying out of all these plans, but the committee, comprising John Barclay of Greensburg, Pa., who had come out in advance of the regular committee, of which he is a member, to meet his badly wounded brother of the Tenth, who is on the Relief; John M. Beall, agent here of the Piedmont Air Line, formerly of Philadelphia; Alex Coulter, Greensburg, Pa.; M. M. Ogden of Governor Gage's staff, formerly a Pittsburgh newspaper man; M. M. Lear of Denver, formerly of Greensburg, whose brother, W. A. Lear, is captain in the Tenth; Colonel Henry Hall of the Pittsburgh Times, a member of Governor Stone's staff, and James A. Campbell of the Philadelphia Times, hastily embarked and were alongside the Senator, extending a warm greeting to their fellow Pennsylvanians and welcoming the brave lads back to their native land.

Out of respect to the dead regimental commander, there was little cheering or other noisy demonstrations, but the men quietly expressed their delight at the first glimpse of the Golden Gate. Like the Oregon and Nebraska regiments, the Pennsylvania troops, prior to sailing from Manila, voted in favor of being mustered out in San Francisco.

Lieutenant Colonel Barnett, who is now in command of the regiment, in the course of an interview, said:

"The boys are all glad, of course, to get back home again, but their joy is tinged with sadness on account of the death of Colonel Hawkins.

"The colonel was a most kind and considerate commander, who took a keen individual interest in his men and it is little wonder that they feel his loss a personal bereavement.

"Colonel Hawkins was a sick man at the beginning of the campaign which ended in the capture of Malolos. The regimental surgeon had advised him to retire for rest and medical attention, but the colonel peremptorily refused, declaring that he would go wherever his men went.

"When the final volley was fired at Malolos, Colonel Hawkins was right in front of the firing line, urging his men onward and encouraging them with his exhibition of personal bravery. After that decisive battle the colonel's illness increased. The ailment developed rapidly in the unhealthy climate. After we embarked he sank steadily and his death at sea was not unexpected."

FOUGHT IN TWO WARS.

Col. Hawkins Served With Honor in the Sixties—His Political Career.

WASHINGTON, Pa., August 2.—Colonel Alexander L. Hawkins was born on September 6, 1843. His early days were spent on his father's farm on the border line of Washington and Greene counties. He was a soldier by inheritance. He comes of fighting stock, belonging to the fourth generation of a fighting family.

Robert Hawkins, the pioneer of the family in America, came to this country from England in 1715. He was an industrious, hard-working man, and a patriot of the truest type. He lived almost a century in the country which he had adopted for his home during the most critical period of its history. During the war for independence he gave over $2,000 for the support of American arms. He sent three sons into the service, one of whom died in the memorable camp at Valley Forge.

The father of Col. Hawkins, James Hawkins, was a farmer and a carder of wool, a broad-minded and industrious man, who taught the lessons of thrift and frugality to his children. Alex. L. was the fourth child, and was surrounded by the best influences of a Christian home and community. After receiving a liberal education at the public schools he attended George's Creek academy, where he prepared himself for college.

He was a student at Waynesburg college for some time, and afterwards taught school. He was about to resume his collegiate studies when President Lincoln issued a call for volunteers.

In the Civil War.

Hawkins began his career as a soldier as a member of Company K, Fifteenth Pennsylvania cavalry, August 30, 1862. Company K was distinctively a Greene county organization, composed mostly of farmer boys, hardy types of the best citizen soldiers. His regiment took part against the raiders of Chambersburg and in the battle of Antietam.

Hawkins was made a corporal on May 12, 1863, and filled the various grades of non-commissioned officer until October 24, 1864, when he was made lieutenant, and in the following spring was given a commission as captain of United States colored troops.

His superior officers recognized in him an officer and warrior of great ability. He was acting lieutenant in the winter of '62 when the regiment was lying in the barracks at Nashville. As captain of United States colored troops he fought under Gen. Thomas, and did valiant service in the battle of Nashville.

Capt. Hawkins remained in the service until some time after the war, on the staff of Maj.-Gen. Clinton B. Fiske. He was mustered out January 21, 1865. After returning from the war he entered the drug business in Pittsburgh in the fall of '66, remaining there for two years, when he sold his store and moved on a farm in East Bethlehem township, Washington county. This farm is the old Hawkins homestead, the original tract which came into the Hawkins family in 1772, on letters patent granted to Thomas Hawkins by the commonwealth of Pennsylvania.

Active in Politics.

After moving to Washington county he took an active part in the Republican politics of Washington county and was one of its most ardent workers after the close of the war. He served as chairman of the Republican committee in 1875, and on a number of occasions since. In the fall of '75 he was elected treasurer of the county by a large majority.

It was during his term in this office that he began his career with the Tenth Pennsylvania regiment, of the national guard, with which he has been identified ever since and which is recognized as one of the best state organizations in the country. Company H, the local company of the Tenth, was in 1872 in a somewhat demoralized condition and there was danger of its being disorganized. By the advice of S. L. Wilson, the first captain of the regiment, he at this time was chosen commander of the company. He received his commission January 1, 1877. He saved the disbandment of the company and proved the right man for the place and built up a strong organization.

Shortly after this the company was called out to quell the Pittsburgh riot. The company went overland to Greensburg and at this time Hawkins showed himself a skillful and efficient officer and a valuable acquisition to the Pennsylvania guard.

The Senior Colonel.

On February 27, 1879, he was elected colonel of the regiment to succeed Col. Black of Greensburg. He was re-elected in 1884, 1889 and 1894. His fourth term expired when he was in the volunteer service in the Philippines. He has for a long time been the senior colonel in the Pennsylvania guard and he was instrumental in its reorganization.

With the reorganization of the regiment and Col. Hawkins at the head it became a service organization for efficient military service. The companies were all from country towns, and as many of its members were fresh from the farm, it became known as Hawkins' hayseed regiment. It, however, always stood close to the leaders in the annual state inspections.

During his twenty years' service as commander of the regiment Col. Hawkins has never missed an encampment or been absent at any occasion where his regiment was represented. He was in command at the inauguration of Presidents Garfield, Cleveland, Harrison and Cleveland, also under the call of the governor of Pennsylvania for three weeks in April, '91, during the labor strike in the coke region of Western Pennsylvania. He was again with his regiment in the summer of '92 during the strike of the steel workers at Homestead.

In the Spanish War.

When President McKinley issued his call for volunteers for the Spanish war Hawkins, as colonel of the Tenth, was anxious to go to the front with his regiment. His command was selected as the only one from the Philippines, and this was considered a mark of honor to the gallant colonel and his efficient regiment.

Col. Hawkins has had a political record of some interest, as well as a military one, being now the representative from the Washington and Beaver district in the state senate. He was elected to this office while on his way to the Philippines, and had no opposition, receiving a phenomenal vote in the district.

He preferred to remain in the distant land of the Philippines to fight for and serve his country, to look after the boys of his command who had been entrusted to his care, than to come home merely to gain political honor.

He had been a candidate for the senate eight years before, but the presence of another Republican in the field at the general election resulted at that time in the election of the Democrat.

Col. Hawkins was married in 1869 to Miss Cynthia Greenfield, to whom were born three children, Clyde E., a graduate of West Point and now a member of the Third United States cavalry as second lieutenant and on his way to the Philippines; Frank, a graduate of Washington and Jefferson college and who was captain of Company C, but now a second lieutenant in the regular army and still in the Philippines, and a daughter, Jessie, who is at home with her mother. He has a beautiful home in East Washington borough and was the chief Burgess of the town when he left for the seat of war.

YELLOW FEVER SPREAD

Six Cases and Two Deaths at Phoebus, Va.

TOTAL OF 40 CASES AT HAMPTON.

The Number of Deaths There Eight. Also Three New Cases of the Disease at That Place—Soldiers Ordered to Battery Point, Del.

NORFOLK, Va., Aug. 2.—Reports from Phoebus stated that six cases of yellow fever had been found and that there had been two deaths among the negro population of Phoebus, adjoining the home.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 2.—"Three new cases of yellow fever in the Soldiers' home at Hampton and one death" was the official report received by Surgeon General Wyman from Dr. Wasdin, the yellow fever expert on duty at the institution. Added to Dr. Wasdin's figures, sent to Dr. Wyman the day before, this made 40 cases in all which had occurred at the home, of which eight had proved fatal. Surgeon White telegraphed Dr. Wyman that in his opinion there was little doubt that there had been some fever infection in the neighboring village of Phoebus, but the surgeon general said that this dispatch had not been followed by any evidence of a positive case at that place. Should the fever develop there, however, no surprise would be felt, in view of the proximity of the place to the Soldiers' home and the mixing of the inmates of the institution with the people of Phoebus.

The opinion was expressed that the situation continued encouraging, inasmuch as the disease had been kept within its original bounds. None of the nearby towns other than Phoebus had reported the appearance of infection or suspicious cases. The people for miles around the home were very much alarmed, but quiet. No restrictions had been placed on the departure of the several hundred visitors at Old Point Comfort, but Dr. Pettus will exercise careful supervision of those who may leave, so as to avoid danger of their communicating the disease. This will apply also to the soldiers stationed on the government reservation there, most of whom have been ordered to proceed to Battery Point, Del.

THREAT OF AXLINE.

Will Make the Merchants Sell to Soldiers—Involving Hanna's Men.

CLEVELAND, Aug. 3.—Adjutant General Axline said that he had found a way to smash the boycott, so far as it affected the troops. He declared that if any more complaints of discrimination against soldiers came to him he would appoint a judge advocate general to proceed against the merchants under the civil rights law and thus seek to bring them to time.

More than half of the employees of the Little Consolidated company have been initiated into the union of the Big Consolidated's former employees and a dispatch was sent to Senator M. A. Hanna, who is in France, asking him if he as president of the Little Consolidated company will recognize the union. No answer had been received to the cablegram.

A prominent physician said he was called to see a little girl who was dying. Two men told him he had better not attend the child, as its father was a "scab." He replied that they ought to serve notice of the boycott on the Almighty and inform him that they would not go to heaven for the child would be there in a short time.

A man was refused medicine at two drug stores, even though he was in a critical condition, simply because he had ridden on a Big Consolidated car.

Some unknown persons pushed an electric freight car loaded with ties from a switch on Mayfield heights onto the main track and down the long, steep hill toward Euclid avenue. About half way down the incline it collided with an upbound car with terrific force. Both were badly wrecked. Two passengers were on the upbound car. Neither they nor the crew were injured beyond a severe shaking up.

A special from Sandusky, O., said that sympathizers with the Cleveland street railway strikers began making attempts to wreck the cars of the Sandusky and Interurban line here. A detachment of police was sent to guard the line. The Sandusky and Interurban line is controlled by President Henry A. Everett of the Big Consolidated company at Cleveland.

AKRON, Aug. 2.—Northern Ohio Traction company men refused to quit work at the request of the Cleveland strikers.

A LONG DISTANCE FIGHTER.

Blanco Thought Santiago Should Not Have Been Surrendered—Pareja and Toral on Trial.

MADRID, Aug. 2.—The second session of the courtmartial of Generals Toral and Pareja, charged with surrendering Santiago de Cuba to the Americans without having exhausted all means of defense, took place and General Pareja, in his defense, said the garrison of the city of Santiago de Cuba lacked food, many of the soldiers having died of hunger. In addition, the hospitals lacked medicines. The general read several telegrams exchanged between the authorities at Washington and Major General Shafter, the latter showing himself confident of forcing the surrender of Santiago de Cuba.

General Toral made a similar defense. He read a telegram sent him by Captain General Blanco, who, after consulting with the authorities at Madrid, approved of the capitulation.

Another Spanish officer testified that when he entered Santiago he found three quarters of the troops sick.

General Rubi gave testimony to the effect that further resistance would have been equivalent to the death of the remainder of the troops.

Lieutenant General Pando testified as to his regretting that the recommendations made by him before leaving Santiago had not been acted on, as Santiago then had sufficient ammunition, except for the artillery. He disapproved the decisions of the generals at Havana, who, he asserted, to succeed should have reinforced Santiago.

General Blanco said he had never advised the capitulation of Santiago, but favored a strong resistance. The government, he declared, had accepted the terms of the United States without discussion and when he telegraphed to General Toral it was too late. Santiago, he added, had far from an insufficient garrison.

Condemns Lack of Transport Service.

LONDON, Aug. 2.—The special artist of The Daily Graphic of this city, now in the Philippines, growled at the authorities who "forbid an artist the assistance which he might provide for himself by engaging servants to carry the food the military authorities decline to supply even now on payment." He condemns the alleged neglect of the transport service. He said in part: "You cannot be taken by cart from Manila to San Tomaso by road without having to swim streams. But for a bit of single railway line the troops would be starved on this line of operations. As it is, they are but fed from hand to mouth."

Some Volunteers Re-Enlisted.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 2.—The following was received from General Otis, dated Manila, July 31: Adjutant general, Washington: Transport Grant sailed yesterday, 78 officers, 8 citizens, 1,353 soldiers and discharged men, Wyoming, North Dakota and Idaho organizations. Left behind about 200 discharged men; good many have re-enlisted. Only sick soldier left, Corporal Frank Gore, H. Wyoming. Minnesota regiment and discharged men next; shipment in very few days. OTIS.

Two Deaths Reported.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 2.—General Otis cabled the war department that the consul at Nagasaki informed him of the death in the hospital there of Private Richard H. Ralph, Battery B, Utah artillery. General Brooke has cabled the death at Santiago on July 28 of John Mack, quartermaster's employe, of yellow fever.

Leary Started For Guam.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 2.—The navy department was informed that the Yosemite sailed from Manila for Guam, where Captain Leary will be installed as governor of that new American possession, succeeding Lieutenant Kaiser.

Reinforcements Reached Manila.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 2.—Under date of Tuesday General Otis cabled the following from Manila to the war department: "Transport Pennsylvania arrived this morning; no casualties."

Dewey Sailed For Naples.

TRIESTE, Austria, Aug. 2.—The United States cruiser Olympia started for Naples.

Elkin Granted the Petition.

HARRISBURG, Aug. 2.—Attorney General Elkin granted the petition of the Municipal League of Philadelphia that a suggestion be filed in the Dauphin county court for a writ of mandamus against Secretary of the Commonwealth Griest to compel the publication of certain proposed amendments to the constitution passed at the recent session of the legislature and vetoed by Governor Stone.

WILL ASK TO SEE ALLEN

Henry Chambers Going to Detroit For That Purpose—Another Wedding In East End—Need Men at the East End Pottery. News of the Busy Suburb.

The East End police have been notified of a crowd of boys residing on the hill above Pennsylvania avenue, who persist in throwing stones at houses at the foot of the hill and breaking windows. The boys have been doing this for several months, and although owners of houses along the street have notified the parents of the boys to have their children refrain from such sport, it had no effect. The property owners have become tired and have asked the police to assist them in breaking up the practice. Last night an officer was on the lookout and his presence had the desired effect.

WILL VIEW ALLEN.

Henry Chambers Will Go to Detroit for That Purpose.

Henry Chambers, of Pennsylvania avenue is planning a trip to Detroit for the purpose of trying to identify the prisoner there supposed to be C. E. Allen. Chambers was beaten out of $11.20. He will go from East End to Cleveland on a bicycle, and from there he will take a boat. He will have a letter of introduction to Mayor Maybury, of Detroit, from Mayor Bough, and if possible an attempt will be made to bring Allen back to Ohio.

When Mr. Anderson was seen by a reporter last evening he stated that while there were any number of large orders for pipe floating around it was almost impossible to get them placed. "No, I cannot say when the plant in East End will start. In fact I cannot say anything for publication."

HUNTING MEN.

Having Trouble In This Respect at the East End Pottery.

Recently a number of men employed at the East End pottery resigned their positions to accept like ones in other potteries. This action is causing the owners of the pottery much annoyance as it is almost impossible to find skilled workmen to fill the places of those who went out.

IN THE HIGH SCHOOL.

A Correspondent Thinks Technical Classes Might Be Added There.

EDITOR NEWS REVIEW:—In regard to Mr. Baum's suggestion that a pottery technical school be established in connection with the new library for teaching freehand drawing, drawing from nature, modeling in clay and chemical analysis of clays and material used in potting, why could not these classes be added to the high school curriculum as an additional or optional course? It would benefit the city as a pottery center and greatly enhance the value of our schools. As I understand Mr. Baum's idea, the proposed technical school would be maintained at the expense of the city, so the cost would be borne by the taxpayers anyhow. Would such a scheme be possible? I would like to hear opinions on the subject.

GROCERY CLERKS

Installed Officers Last Evening and Elected Three Trustees.

The grocery clerks' union met last evening and installed the following officers: Frank Kuckert, president; Albert Kountz, secretary; David McLane, treasurer. E. W. Hill, A. C. Boice and F. P. Larkins were elected trustees and Edward Larkins was selected as a delegate to Trades council to fill a vacancy. A letter was read from the secretary of the American Federation of Labor stating that the union was regularly organized and had the full protection of the Federation. The only question that remains to be settled is whether the union is under the jurisdiction of the National Retail Clerks' union, and the members will not worry about it as long as they have the protection of the Federation.

A NEW ELECTION

The Gossip.

More attention should be paid to the old fashioned saying, "He who brings will carry." If a man brings bad stories about others to you, he will carry bad stories about you to others. This is so true it is a wonder that people are not more cautious in their talk when with gossips. Don't let any one carry anything from you.—Atchison Globe.

FRANCE AND AMERICA.

Consul Bruwaert Discusses the 'New Reciprocity Treaty.'

BARGAIN IS IN OUR FAVOR.

United States Placed on the Same Footing With England, Germany, Belgium and Austria—New Trade Era Is Begun—Why Details of Agreement Are Kept Secret.

Much interest was manifested the other day in New York in the conclusion of the reciprocity treaty between the United States and France, under which American exports to France will be admitted on the same terms with exports from England, Germany and other European countries which have had the benefit of the French minimum tariff.

Neither Collector Bidwell nor Appraiser Wakemen had learned from Washington the details of the treaty, and neither would venture an opinion as to its effect, says the New York Herald. Francois Edmond Bruwaert, the French consul general to the United States, while not informed as to the extent of the American concessions, explained the general scope of the treaty.

"I regard it as an excellent thing for the United States," he said. "America was the only country which did not have the benefit of our minimum tariff. As manufacturers abroad are satisfied with a profit of 5 per cent, the difference between the maximum and minimum rates was sufficient to keep the United States out of the French market."

"France's annual importation of manufactured articles is about $280,000,000, and the United States will get a good share of this. America undersells England in cotton goods in China, and there is no reason why it cannot do the same in France. It will be the same with other articles."

"England, Belgium, Germany and Austria now supply France with her imported manufactured articles. The leading imports are raw cotton, wheat, tobacco, mineral oil, copper and lead. America sends agricultural implements, sewing machines, electrical appliances and pumps."

"There are 642 articles on the dutiable list of the French tariff, and the treaty gives the United States the minimum rate on all except 12. Germany, England and the other countries which have treaties with France do not enjoy the minimum rate on these 12 exceptions, which are chiefly agricultural products. The average difference between the French maximum and minimum rate is 33 per cent, so that imports from the United States will pay one-third less duty when the treaty goes into effect."

"There are 463 dutiable items in the tariff law of the United States, and in return for her concessions France will obtain a lower rate on less than 100 of them, the average reduction being only 10 per cent. While this seems one-sided, it is not so much so as it appears, because American goods have been sent into France as English goods under the minimum tariff."

"I do not think the treaty can go into effect before next February. It must be ratified both here and in France and signed by President Loubet and President McKinley. Then copies of the treaty must be exchanged."

"This treaty marks a new era for the United States. There will eventually be opposition to American imports in foreign countries, and it will be wise for the United States to make trade treaties before that opposition becomes too strong. Mr. Kasson, who negotiated the treaty for the United States, has lived much abroad, and I think he takes a broad view of the situation, foreseeing what must happen in the future."

"France has given all she can give, because, with her $7,000,000,000 of national debt, she cannot reduce her tariff any further. We did not get what we asked, by any means, but we obtained all the United States was willing to give. We realized that the treaty must be such that congress would approve it, and France deferred to President McKinley's wishes on that account."

M. Bruwaert said that the United States had a great commercial future and expressed admiration at the ease with which Secretary Gage borrowed all the money needed for the war with Spain.

Secrecy is maintained in regard to the classes of goods upon which the American tariff will be lowered. This is done in order to avoid the opposition of interests which might object to foreign competition in the home market. The details will probably not be made known before congress meets.

An Oklahoma Yacht.

The Howard brothers of Fulton, O. T., have invented a vehicle in which they ride and which is propelled by means of sails. These brothers rode to Beaver, 20 miles distant, in the new carriage. The machine, according to the Kansas City Times, is a curiously constructed thing, having four wheels and is fitted with masts and sails on the principle of a sailing vessel, except that it has wheels and runs on land instead of on water. It was simply driven by the wind all the way from Fulton. It is reported to have made good speed on the trip and at times to have traveled at the rate of 15 miles an hour.

A Sure Winner.

A buzzard, who found a freshly killed hare and was about to bear it away to a tree top to be eaten at leisure, was addressed by a fox who came running up with:

"Ah, now, but I mistook you for the eagle and wanted a word with you."

The buzzard was flattered and offered reynard the head of the hare. As she did so the wolf came up and observed:

"Well, well, but who ever saw the buzzard looking so fierce and so proud as today? Really, now, but I took you for the condor."

That tickled the buzzard again, and to show her good will she divided the body of the hare with the wolf. She had said that she must be off, when the jackal came trotting up and exclaimed:

"Upon my word, but I must have dust in my eyes. I was sure that my friend here was the ostrich, and I was going to ask her for a feather. Mrs. Buzzard, my compliments!"

The buzzard grinned and giggled and tried to look shy, and meanwhile the jackal ate up the other half of the hare.

"Here—how's this—where's my part?" exclaimed the buzzard, as she got to see what had happened.

"Oh, we took the meat and you have the taffy!" replied the jackal as he licked his chops and walked off.

The Influence of the Flat.

The flat has made its mark on the conditions of modern life. A good illustration of this fact is the following story of a bright Kenwood youngster "going on 6." The boy heard a visitor say to his grandmother, "Well, I suppose you feel very proud these days, with three of your sons married and settled?"

"Only two," corrected the boy, who was not supposed to understand anything at all about the subject. Just to see what his idea was his grandmother and her visitor cross examined him. The conversation ran like this:

"Why do you think only two are married, John? There's your Uncle Jim—he's one."

"Yes ma'am. And he lives in a flat."

"What's that got to do with it? And there's your Uncle Fred—he's two."

"Yes ma'am. And he lives in a flat too."

"Why, yes; certainly. And there's your own father—he's three."

"No, ma'am," cried the youngster triumphantly. "My papa isn't married. I know he isn't 'cause he lives in a house."—Chicago Inter Ocean.

Bear Baiting In Olden Days.

So popular was bull baiting in olden days in England that riots followed the attempt to suppress it in the large towns. Bear baiting was more popular still, if that could be. In various places, Liverpool especially, it made part of the festivities at the election of the mayor, being held before his worship started for church. Ladies commonly attended in great numbers. There was a famous bear at Liverpool, which showed such grand sport in 1782 that certain fair admirers presented it with a garland, decked it with ribbons and carried it to the theater, where a special entertainment had been "commanded," which Bruin sat out in the front of their box. But of gossip about bull and bear baiting there is no end. Enthusiastic lovers of Shakespeare read with interest the petition of the royal bear warden, addressed to Queen Elizabeth in 1595, complaining that his licensed performances had been neglected of late because every one went to the theater.

Favor and Favour.

Now I am not going to argue about the matter, but it may interest the reader to know that the first canvassing card which Mr. Gladstone ever issued, when he was a young Tory candidate at Newark, was printed in this way: "Mr. Gladstone to solicit the favor of your vote and interest."

So those misguided creatures who say that "favor" is a modern Americanism must explain how an ultra blue Oxford Tory, educated up to the eyebrows, came to use that form of spelling nearly 70 years ago.—London Leader.

Double Proof.

"Do you believe in heredity, Mrs. Simpson?"

"Indeed I do. Every mean trait Bobby has I can trace right back to his father."

"Does his father believe in heredity too?"

"Yes. He traces Bobby's faults all back to me."—Chicago Record.

Lake Superior is 1,008 feet deep, 601 feet of this body being above sea level and 407 below it. The bottom of this great lake is about 375 feet deeper down than the channels giving admittance to New York harbor. Lake Erie's greatest depth is 210 feet.

WELCOME WORDS TO WOMEN.

Women who suffer with disorders peculiar to their sex should write to Dr. Pierce and receive free the advice of a physician of over thirty years' experience—a skilled and successful specialist in the diseases of women. Every letter of this sort has the most careful consideration and is, of course, regarded as sacredly confidential. Many sensitively modest women write fully to Dr. Pierce what they would shrink from telling to their local physician. The local physician is pretty sure to say that he cannot do anything without "an examination." Dr. Pierce holds that these distasteful examinations are generally needless, and that no woman, except in rare cases, should submit to them.

Dr. Pierce's treatment will cure you right in the privacy of your own home. His "Favorite Prescription" has cured hundreds of thousands, some of them the worst imaginable cases. It is the only medicine of its kind that is the product of a regularly graduated physician. Some unscrupulous medicine dealers may offer you a substitute. Don't take it. Don't trifle with your health. Write to Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.,—take his advice and be well.

Mrs. R. D. Monfort, of Lebanon, Warren Co., O., writes: "I drop you a line this morning to let you know that I have received the Medical Adviser, and how very much pleased I am with it. A crisp, new five dollar bill could not tempt me to part with it."

On receipt of 21 one-cent stamps, to pay cost of mailing only, we will send free to any address a paper-bound copy of Dr. Pierce's great 1000 page book, "The Common Sense Medical Adviser." Or, the same book bound in fine French cloth will be sent for 10 cents extra to pay the cost of this more handsome and more durable binding. Address World's Dispensary Medical Ass'n, Buffalo, N. Y.

WITH ONE VOICE.

East Liverpool People Who Have Investigated Are a Unit on the Subject.

The voice of the people is heard all o'er the land. Trumpet notes of truth. Sounded from East to West. East Liverpool has joined the throng. Many a citizen lifts his voice in praise.

Enthusiastic people everywhere. Backs relieved of heavy burdens. Nights of suffering, days of misery. Become nights of rest and days of joy.

It's the constant workings of Doan's Kidney Pills.

Are these reports all true? Ask a neighbor who knows.

Here's an East Liverpool man, ask him.

Read what he says:

Mr. Thomas Laughlin, of 172 Sophia street, engineer, says: "I caught cold and neglected it—it settled in my back and kidneys, forced me to quit work and almost cost me my life. I could not move without suffering, and often could neither sit, stand or lie for pain. The secretion of the kidneys went wrong, and distressed and annoyed me both night and day. I took medicines for two years but did not get well. When I read of Doan's Kidney Pills I got a box at the W. & W. pharmacy. Noticing some improvement by the time I had taken the first half of the box, I continued until I took four boxes, and my back was all right as well as the urinary trouble. Doan's Kidney Pills are without doubt a grand remedy. I will endorse them at all times. I will substantiate my statement of Doan's Kidney Pills if any one will call at my house to investigate for themselves. My wife had some backache also; she took Doan's Kidney Pills and was cured."

Doan's Kidney Pills are sold for 50 cents per box by all dealers, or sent by mail on receipt of price by Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the U. S. Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

EVERY WOMAN Sometimes needs a reliable monthly regulating medicine. DR. PEAL'S PENNYROYAL PILLS. Are prompt, safe and certain in result. The genuine (Dr. Peal's) never disappoint. Sent anywhere $1.00. For sale by C. G. Anderson, Druglist.

A GROCER CAUGHT SUNDAY LAST

A Wheelman Injured on First Avenue Last Night—More Men Working on the Extension—Sheriff Wilkins Did Some Work on the Southside Yesterday.

Squire Finley went to Cumberland yesterday for the purpose of ascertaining from the prosecuting attorney of Hancock county some facts relating to storekeepers who allow their places to be open on Sunday. What he learned will have much bearing upon a case against a prominent Southside grocer who sold goods Sunday last.

When the several grocers learned one of their number was open they notified Mr. Finley and he at once investigated the matter and found the facts to be as represented. Hence the trip to the courthouse. Some interesting developments are promised later in the week.

MORE MEN.

Additional Forces From Panhandle Road Being Employed.

The Steubenville Gazette says: "An extra work train put on the Panhandle 10 weeks ago was discontinued yesterday, but men who desired work were sent to the Cumberland branch extension at Kenilworth. So far about one mile of the proposed road to Rock Springs has been laid. The new extension will make more work than the two section gangs are capable of doing; so, in order to divide the work equitably, two gangs will soon be added. The company will have all the trestles filled in before spring and the road bed in as good condition as the main line. Yesterday the pile driver was started to work building retaining walls at numerous points along the branch. Supervisor Ovington, who has charge of the branch, has four extra work gangs ditching and widening cuts."

SOCIAL FRIDAY EVENING.

A Number of East Liverpool People Will Go to Ramsey's Place.

A number of East Liverpool people will go to Frank Ramsey's place, between here and Hookstown, Friday evening, to enjoy a social to be held for the purpose of assisting the Presbyterian church of Hookstown. Doctor Davis, who enjoys an enviable reputation as an elocutionist, has kindly promised to be present and entertain the party. Choice refreshments will be served and any person interested is cordially invited. Mr. Ramsey's place is just across the line, about five miles from East Liverpool and two and a half from Hookstown. It is an ideal place for a pleasant evening.

AFTER WITNESSES.

Many Persons From Chester Were In Cumberland Today.

Yesterday Sheriff Wilkins, of Hancock county, was on the Southside serving summonses on James M. Porter, Capt. John Porter, R. H. Brown, Peter A. Pugh, Capt. W. C. Mahan, Brown Hewitt, Allen E. McDonald, Pearl Howard, Hugh Newell, James W. Finley and J. P. Bradley. These men went to Cumberland today and testified before the commissioners of Hancock county, who were appointed by the court to assess the damage to property caused by the Panhandle railroad company building an extension to the Cumberland branch.

UNDER A WAGON.

Enoch Riley Met With a Serious Accident Last Night.

While riding his bicycle on First avenue last night Enoch Riley was crowded into a ditch by a farmer's wagon, which caused him to have his left arm badly injured. He fell under the wagon, and but for timely assistance his injuries might have been worse. It is probable a charge of reckless driving will be preferred against the driver.

Before Justice Finley.

John Martin became intoxicated last evening and was taken before Squire Finley a short time. Matters were so arranged that he was taken home by his wife, accompanied by Officer Marshall.

NO CLUE.

William Smith Is Still Among the Missing.

There is still no clue to William Smith, but his bondsmen are leaving no stone unturned to find him, and Squire McLane is of the opinion that he will be brought to justice.

There is a great deal of comment as to whether Smith's bond has been forfeited and status of the case is as follows: Justice McLane will certify the case to the clerk of courts and it will then go to the grand jury. Should the grand jury find an indictment the case will be set for hearing in common pleas court and the bondsmen will be expected to furnish him. If he is not present the judge will give them a reasonable time in which to produce their man and if he is not forthcoming at the end of that time the bond will be forfeited and the men required to pay the amount. The bondsmen hope to secure Smith before the case reaches the grand jury.

The Broker's Reply.

A youthful looking broker went into a Broadway store the other day to buy a new hat, and laid his old one on the counter while waiting for the clerk to wait upon him. He happened to turn around as a Quaker came in in the garb unusual even in this cosmopolitan city, and smiled involuntarily at the odd sight. The Quaker took the broker for a salesman, and, taking off his broad hat, held it out to the young man, saying:

"Hast thou a hat like this, my friend?"

"No," replied the broker, "and if I had I would not wear it."

Then, noticing the look of surprise on the face of the grave old Quaker, he explained that he dealt in stocks, not in hats.—New York Tribune.

Disastrous Fortune Telling.

An extraordinary case of madness, in which all members of a family, consisting of father, mother and four children, were simultaneously afflicted, recently occurred in Belgium. A party of strolling gypsies, who undertook to tell the father's fortune by means of cards, declared that he would be killed while serving in the army, and this prediction so impressed him and his family that in the course of the same day they all developed signs of wavering reason and before long had to be put under restraint. The gypsies, who were the source of the trouble, were arrested by the German police when crossing the frontier from Belgium.

Wheeled Into the Army.

James E. Emerson, aged 18 years, arrived at New York recently after a journey from Columbus, O., on his bicycle, says the Philadelphia Press. He wanted to enlist in the navy, but, finding the demand was greater for recruits in the army, he enlisted the other day for service in the Philippines.

It would be a queer Democratic platform that didn't denounce something as unconstitutional. That's their last standby in every argument.

COLUMBIANA county delegates to the Democratic state convention will go uninstructed. Mr. McLean will please make a note in his check book.

THE TOWNSHIP TRUSTEES.

The semi-annual statement of the township trustees published yesterday shows the financial end of their work but the countless benefactions accomplished with the small amount of cash expended can only be guessed at by outsiders. The trustees deserve well of the community.

A DEMOCRATIC PLATFORM.

The county Democracy built their Wellsville platform in the usual Democratic way. Picking up a Republican plank they decided they didn't want one like that and left the hole unplanked. When they got through they had a beautiful array of holes where planks might have been put but as they didn't like the Republican lumber they didn't have any platform.

A TECHNICAL SCHOOL.

Mr. Baum's suggestion that a pottery technical school might be established in connection with the proposed Carnegie library will be of service if it only results in the discussion of the advantages of such a school. An institution of this kind, even apart from the library, would be of great benefit to the city. A suggestion from another correspondent that courses as suggested by Mr. Baum might be added to the high school is also worth discussion.

PUBLIC DUTY.

The election of incompetent men to council, due directly to the neglect of the taxpayers to take sufficient interest to select good men, results not alone in immediate inconvenience to the citizens but also injures the city abroad. A town with a reckless council and an exorbitant tax rate is shunned by new enterprises and prospective residents. Level headed men with business ability and a certain amount of capacity for affairs are the men needed to run the business of a municipality. Pothouse politicians, who use their official power for personal purposes, are the result of neglect of duty on the part of voters. Yet they may be said to be truly representative of the community, for their neglect of the city's interests is only parallel to and the result of the neglect of their constituents in permitting them to be elected. The stream rises no higher than its source. East Liverpool voters promise, however, to remedy this the next time by doing their full duty and seeing that men are elected to council who will do their duty also.

IN MEMORIAM.

Colonel A. L. Hawkins is dead, and the whole nation mourns. God be with his dear ones in their Pennsylvania home. God be with wife and daughter and with his two gallant sons, Clyde and Frank, officers in the regular army. Colonel A. L. Hawkins commanded the Tenth for over twenty years. He was elected and re-elected without opposition on each occasion, no man desiring to enter the contest against him. The writer served with him for sixteen years, as private, corporal, sergeant, color bearer and captain, and knew him and loved him well. He was the friend of the private and of the officer. All he asked was that duty should be well performed. He was a strict disciplinarian, but tempered justice with mercy. He was fairly worshipped by the rank and file. He was a model soldier, brave almost to recklessness. The writer will remember his gallant conduct on the night of July 31, and the morning of Aug. 1, 1898, so long as memory holds sway. His bearing on August 13, 1898, upon entering Manila from the beach, under a hot fire from Spanish sharpshooters, was simply superb. He seemed unconscious of danger. His bravery in the after battles against the Filipinos won for him the praise of the nation. It is good to have served under such a commander; good to have carried Old Glory under his orders. The nation mourns for him. God bless and comfort his wife and children.

CROXALL ARRAIGNED

Pleaded Not Guilty to a Charge of Robbery and Will

HAVE A HEARING TOMORROW

Stewart, Gourley and Jenkins, Charged With Stealing Flour, Pleaded Not Guilty. Waive an Examination and Are Held For Court--Geary Gets $9.60.

Newton Croxall was arraigned this morning before Mayor Bough, charged by Officer McMillan with holding up Miss Minnie and Miss Lida Shaffer last Saturday evening and taking from them a gold watch and chain valued at $42, a gold ring worth $3 and money to the amount of $6. Croxall promptly pleaded not guilty to the charge and tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock was set for hearing the case. He was held under $1,000 bail and is still in jail.

George Stewart, Ike Gourley and James Jenkins were arraigned this morning on a charge of breaking into a car and stealing eight sacks of flour, valued at $4.40, and belonging to Fitzgerald Bros. They all pleaded not guilty, but waived a preliminary examination and were bound over to court in the sum of $350 each. They will probably be taken to Lisbon tomorrow. The police this morning recovered two more of the sacks that were stolen, and the mayor now has six sacks of flour in his possession.

Officer McMillan this morning arrested Charles Geary upon a charge of disorderly conduct and using profane language preferred by Mrs. McConnell, of Locust alley. Geary pleaded guilty to the charge, was fined $9.60, paid it and was released.

Several days ago a dog bit the son of Mrs. Patrick Nolan, Fifth street, and complaint was made to Mayor Bough. He sent an officer after the dog. It was captured, taken to the West End burial ground and in a few minutes it was among the missing.

THE RACE MEET.

George Hale spent yesterday in Alliance, Canton, Salem and Lisbon in the interests of the bicycle meet to be held here next week. There will be a large number of people here from these cities, and the main interest is in the match race between W. H. Stevenson, of Detroit, and Paul McLain, of Pittsburg. McLain has been substituted for Lester Wilson, who has been appointed by Charles Gerloch of the racing board, to represent the United States at the international meet to be held at Montreal.

SAYS HILL IS MISTAKEN.

Pittsburg Hotel Clerk Insists Detroit Man Can't Be Allen.

Louis A. Wiseburg, the Pittsburg hotel clerk who went to Detroit and failed to identify the prisoner, John R. Davis, as C. E. Allen, thinks Attorney Walter B. Hill was mistaken in saying Davis was Allen beyond a doubt.

Wiseburg says: "I am positive Davis is not the man wanted here or in East Liverpool, and the statement of the Detroit sheriff has doubly confirmed my opinion. When Allen left here April 21 his face was as smooth as a smelt. Nine days later he was in the Detroit jail wearing a heavy moustache. Everybody knows that it is a physical impossibility for a man to develop a luxurious moustache in nine days."

FLASHLIGHTS IN A STEEPLE.

A Chicago Baptist Church Has a Novel Substitute For Chimes.

The steeple of Immanuel Baptist church, Michigan avenue and Thirty third street, in Chicago, has been provided with two are lamps that alternately flash brilliant lights. The beacon can be seen far out on the lake, and it is hoped by the church authorities that it will be the means of guiding many a mariner into port, says the Chicago Inter Ocean.

"We have been struggling for this result for four years," said the Rev. Johnston Myers, pastor of the church. "It is, after all, the symbol of the church, 'God is light; in him there is no darkness.' We have hesitated because the theaters were already the monopolizers of the scheme, but now we put even them in the background. for they have no steeple. When I was in Cincinnati, I had an electric arch erected over the pavement in front of the church, and the plan was extremely successful. People passing by stopped and wondered if some new theater or other resort had opened. Then they came in, and that is where the good begins. I hope some such result may be our fortune with this plan." The lights will be in operation every night in the week.

A Pretty Little Story.

The prettiest child story that I have seen lately is in French.

A mother tells her little girl that because she has been naughty she will not kiss her for a week. Before two days have gone by the child's lips hunger so for her mother's kiss that she begs her not to punish her any more.

The mother says: "No, my dear. I told you that I should not kiss you, and I must keep my word."

"But, mamma, mamma," says the little girl, "would it be breaking your word if you should kiss me just once tonight when I'm asleep?"—Boston Transcript.

Not to Be Sat Down On.

"One of those little chickens won't mind the old hen at all. It runs about by itself and doesn't pay any attention to her clucks."

"I don't really blame the poor little thing. It's one that was hatched in an incubator."—Chicago Tribune.

Words That Live.

"When a man pays a woman a compliment, it is said that she never forgets him."

"That's not exactly the way of it. She sometimes forgets the man, but she always remembers the compliment."—Chicago Record.

SOME SORE DELEGATES

Were Present at the Democratic Convention.

THEY CAME FROM THIS CITY

And Claimed Ex-Chairman Had Not Lived Up to Promises He Had Made—Another Delegate Objected to Stark County Renegades Running the Convention—List of Central Committeemen.

The delegates to the Democratic convention held yesterday at Wellsville before evening had all deserted the village.

While everything on the surface appeared to be harmonious yet it seems several of the Liverpool delegates were sore at Ex-Chairman Weisend who they claimed had not lived up to certain promises he had made and when the motion was made to substitute the name of J. N. Mahaffie, of St. Clair township, for J. W. Moore, of this city, as a delegate to the state convention, they voted for the St. Clair township man.

Another delegate after the convention adjourned said they didn't propose to have the Democracy of this county run by a renegade Democrat of Stark county, and for that reason B. Renkenberger, of Columbiana, was elected chairman of the county committee.

The selection of Renkenberger means that no more county conventions will be held in this end of the county for two years, as it was understood when the slate was prepared that he will call all conventions for Lisbon.

A list of the central committeemen handed to Chairman Renkenberger is as follows:

St. Clair—Orlo D. Smith, William T. Grim, J. W. Mahaffie.

East Palestine—West precinct, Joseph Herald, A. Mascher, Thomas Morrow; East precinct, John Mauke, H. Lawrence, Park Patterson.

TRAGEDY ON THE MIDWAY.

Tale of a Whisky Bottle, a Bench and a Few Other Things.

A funny incident was witnessed on the Midway yesterday afternoon. A lot of loafers were seated on a bench, supposed to be waiting to be provided with refreshments when some good hearted or generous creature came along. Some party upstairs got a whisky bottle, tied a string to it and lowered the bottle until it dangled in the faces of the crowd on the bench. One of the gang got mad, saying if he knew "who done that" he'd "put a face on him." A companion soothed him by saying the bottle would have been all right if it was full. Passersby noticed the suspended bottle, glanced at the loafers and snickered until the gang took a sneak.

Can Well Afford It.

We congratulate our nearby Ohio neighbors of Steubenville and East Liverpool on having secured a gift of fifty thousand dollars each for public library buildings. The arguments made for the preference was that Andrew Carnegie had lived for a time in each of these towns. It carried. Mr. Carnegie is not one to forget his early days and he has responded generously. The cities named can well afford to assume the cost and trouble of management in order to secure such benefits.—Pittsburg Home Monthly.

HORRIBLE, IF TRUE!

A Wild Story From West Point, via Wellsville.

TWO DOGS KILLED A CHILD

And Were Discovered Devouring the Remains—Story Sounds Like a Fake and Cannot Be Confirmed at West Point or Vicinity.

A resident of Wellsville in the presence of one of our prominent city physicians said that a neighbor had informed him that a family living near West Point had gone out blackberrying, accompanied by their little child and two shepherd dogs. When they reached the blackberry patch they left the child on the edge of the patch guarded by the two dogs.

Upon their return they found, to their horror, that the child was dead and the dogs were devouring the remains.

We have made investigation from the best sources of information that we could find from West Point and other points near at hand and can find nothing confirmatory of the horrible story which appears upon the surface to be a fake. The man who would indulge in such a fake and attempt to foist it upon the public is second cousin to a graveyard ghoul.

LAWS FOR FILIPINOS.

Chinese Minister Talks of Natives and How to Rule Them.

EUROPEAN COUNTRIES INTERESTED

All Nations Are Watching United States Solve Oriental Problem. Under Conservative and Liberal Treatment Wu Ting Fang Says They Will Become Good Citizens.

Wu Ting Fang, China's minister to the United States, who is also imperial representative to the court of Spain, has returned to Washington from an official visit to Madrid. In all of the European countries that he passed through Mr. Wu says the greatest interest is manifested in the prospective disposition of the Philippines, says the Chicago Inter Ocean.

"The people of Spain, France and England realize, however," he declared, "that the United States has a hard nut to crack in the matter of the subjugation of the Filipinos. The Filipino people are probably unlike any other nationality on earth, and consequently a distinct and peculiar manner of treatment is necessary, in any negotiations between them and a foreign people for the accomplishment of their sovereignty, to a nation so dissimilar to them in every characteristic."

"Perhaps if the people of the United States had the Spanish war to fight over again they would hesitate in a determination to hold these islands as an indemnity with the purpose of subduing the Filipinos, for, as every one knows, the struggle there has cost many valuable lives and many thousands of dollars. But now that they are in the conflict with the intention of conquering the natives, it would never do for the government to desist. The prize is many times worth the pain, and I am convinced that when peace shall have been completely established the prodigious value of the islands, both in a commercial sense and in respects too numerous to mention, will be fully appreciated by the American nation."

"It must be borne in mind, however, that in order to retain the islands without fomenting a repetition of the frequent disturbances which marked the sovereignty of Spain in the Philippines, the legislative and executive branches of the American government must enact and enforce a code of laws which will be in conformity with the manners, customs and temperament of the Filipino people. It would be an impossibility for the United States to extend its own statutes to the Filipinos as they now stand and maintain a peaceful and happy condition there."

"Laws must be enacted by the American congress to apply to the Filipinos exclusively, laws which are suitable and applicable even to a shade to the natives. It will be impossible for the people of the United States to proclaim their own laws and then attempt to make the Filipinos conform to them. They must gather the natives, study their habits and disposition and then frame laws to conform to the populace. That, in substance, is an economic axiom which is beyond controversy. During my residence in China I have come in contact with a great many of the Filipinos who have journeyed to the Chinese ports on commercial business. They are, as a rule, well educated, thrifty and gifted with natural intelligence. Under a conservative and liberal treatment they will, I believe, prove to be good citizens, worthy of admission to the United States."

"A wholesome proportion of the people there are Chinese. The Chinese of the Philippines, however, are unlike those which inhabit the United States. In and around Manila there are subjects of the emperor engaged in every channel of business and in every walk of life. There are merchants, expert artisans, professional men, business men and others following different pursuits from that of manual labor. There are many Chinese millionaires there, men from the most renowned, accomplished and aristocratic families of my native country. They have proved a considerable factor in the prosperity and richness of the islands, which was so greatly appreciated by the Spanish government, and they will continue to enhance the good commercial name of the islands under American control."

"For this reason I entertain the hope that the Chinese exclusion law now in operation in the United States will not be extended to the Philippines when the American government abolishes military law and provides a civil code for governing the islands. Our countrymen will be done a great injustice if it does so. The most casual observation to any one interested will convince him that the Chinese are a necessity to the Philippines and that their presence there, in numbers unlimited, will be a boon rather than a bane to the future of the archipelago. They are so dissimilar to the impression of the Chinese race which obtains in the United States that a comparison is difficult."

Electrical Prosperity.
From all parts of the country reports

are coming in of dividends declared by electric lighting and street railway companies. This encouraging and satisfactory state of things shows that the electrical industry is back again on its old basis, after the unsettling experiences of the last few years of financial and business depression. There is every indication that it will continue to hold this place indefinitely, for no form of industrial activity has greater or more stable earning power than the application of electricity to the various arts.—Electrical Review.

The Lambs For Wall Street.

The brassy, menly peddler who stands at the street corner selling brass shirt studs for 5 cents apiece and shouting that he "guarantees" them to be gold catches many a wandering fool. The "guarantee" is given by a man who never expects to see his customers again, and the customers never expect to trade with him a second time. But the word "guarantee" carries weight with it, and the fool and his money, now as ever, are soon parted.

Every day's mail brings me letters of inquiry regarding the stability of a set of "guarantee" profits ranging from 10 to 100 per cent per month to all who will give up their good money and trust the sharpers to invest it in the maelstrom of speculation. Scarcely a week passes without the report in the newspapers of the exposure, the flight or arrest of one of these sharks. But the race of fools seems to be eternal, and it appears to be only necessary for the Wall street bunko man to take a new name and to hire desk-room in Wall street or one of its laterals to reap a new crop from a new line of customers.—Leslie's Weekly.

A Fish Mystery.

One strange feature of this sea life of the tropics is the regular recurrence of migratory swarms of fish of very small size that return in huge numbers year after year with such absolute regularity that the natives calculate on the event on a certain day in each year and even within an hour or two of the day. One such swarm of fish forms the occasion of an annual holiday and feast at Samoa. The fish is not unlike the whitebait for which the English Thames has so long been celebrated, and each year it arrives at Samoa on the same day in the month of October, remains for a day, or at the most two days, and then disappears entirely till the same day of the following year.

Why it comes or whence no curious naturalist has yet discovered, nor has anybody traced its onward course when it leaves the Samoan group, but the fact is unquestionable that suddenly, without notice, the still waters of the lagoon which surround each island within the fringing reef become alive with millions of fishes, passing through them for a single day and night and then disappearing for a year as though they had never come.—Lippincott's.

Chicago Modesty.

"Chicago beats the world," announced the tall, slim traveling man after he had taken a late lunch in the hotel cafe. "It claims everything and concedes nothing. A novice would be made to think over there that Chicago exploited the universe, stocked it, watered the stock, issued half a dozen series of bonds and ran it ever since."

"What do you think I went up against in that town last winter? I was coming out of one of the theaters when a cadaverous looking genius with ten inch hair asked me if I was a lawyer. I humored him to learn what his game was. 'Well, sir,' he continued, 'you have a chance to make a fortune. You have seen this play, strong on the stage and strong in the box office. It's superb, yet it's a bald faced, unmitigated, cold blooded plagiarism. I wrote it, every word of it. Not a situation, climax or sentence is changed. Go after the author for damages, and I'll give you half.'"

"I dodged through the crowd ahead of us and made my escape."

"What was the play?"

"The Rivals."—Detroit Free Press.

A Newsboy's Triumph.

A pretty young lady dropped her dainty lace handkerchief at a State street corner the other afternoon. A dapper young man and a newsboy both saw it drop and simultaneously made a grab for it, and each got a corner.

"Let go; I've got it," whispered the fellow to the boy.

"Let go yourself!" shouted the newsy. "I've got it."

While the man was apparently whispering a bribe to the boy the latter suddenly jerked the handkerchief out of his hands and handed it to the smiling girl, with the remark:

"Dat guy wanted to make a mash, I guess, but I caught de snuffer first."

The crowd laughed, and the "guy" suddenly moved on.—Chicago News.

One of the Directors.

"Impossible," exclaimed the caller to the proud mother. "I can't believe that your son, who has only been in the employ of that great corporation for six months, is already a director."

"Well, I can. James is a splendid penman, and here is the news in his last letter." He had just finished directing 10,000 circulars.—Detroit Free Press.

WIRELESS TORPEDOES.

Deadly Weapons Steered From Shore With No Material Connection.

Contemporaneous with the sitting of the international peace commission comes the announcement of a new invention by which torpedoes are to be rendered more deadly in modern warfare than heretofore. The invention, due to Messrs. Walter Jamieson and John Trotter, consists in utilizing the "etherial" or "Hertzian" waves, which are the basis of wireless telegraphy, as a means of steering and controlling torpedoes on their deadly missions.

The apparatus is made in several forms, which differ principally in the means by which the current induced by the waves is applied to the steering mechanism. The best arrangement consists of a coil of iron wire or "solenoid" that becomes magnetic on receiving the etherial waves, and is thus rendered capable of sucking into itself a magnet, the motion of which brings about any required change in the steering gear of the torpedo. The latter is fitted with two rods, which project above the water and serve as "receivers"—that is, means of collecting the waves. Each of the rods is in connection with a coil of the type described, one on the right of the torpedo and one on the left, and, according as the right hand or the left hand rod absorbs the waves, so the torpedo is guided to the right or left.

The means adopted in using the apparatus is as follows, says the New York Times: Suppose that the torpedo is fired in the usual manner and that its course is seen to swerve from its proper path. From the torpedo boat electrical waves are immediately dispatched by the processes used in wireless telegraphy in such a manner that they only affect either the right hand or left hand coil controlling the helm, which is thus turned in any required direction and the original course of the torpedo reproduced. When this is accomplished, the electric waves are stopped and the helm flies back to the midship position.

Large models of the apparatus have been experimented with, and it is said that perfect success has been obtained under all possible conditions. Since the new method of guiding torpedoes is greatly superior to the old, which made use of electric wires, it is evident that the new invention will be an important factor in future naval warfare.

ADVANCING ON SAN FERNANDO.

How Insurgents Were Driven From the Trenches by Brave Kansas Men—General Funston Receives a Wound—On a Scouting Trip With Major Bell.

John T. McCutcheon, the Chicago Record's Manila correspondent, writing under date of May 7 about our army's advance on San Fernando, says:

Santo Tomas is peculiarly situated. The town is at least a mile in a westerly direction from the railway, and the river runs south of the town. Between the railway and Santo Tomas is a swampy stretch of uncultivated ground, which makes a direct communication with the track impracticable. In consequence of this the road reaching the railway runs off in a northerly diagonal direction, intersecting the railway about a mile beyond the bridge. At the intersection stands the railway station and freighthouse, with a cluster of nipa houses in the bamboo woods just south of the station, while beyond for 1,000 yards is a broad, open ricefield. San Fernando lies only three miles northwest, along the railway, from the Santo Tomas station, and as it was then the Filipino capital a hard fight was confidently expected to await our troops before taking it.

On the afternoon of May 4 the troops began advancing from the Santo Tomas bridge toward the station. From all indications it might have been supposed that there was not an insurgent within miles. A gigantic trench, very recently built, was passed, and a huge breastwork across the railway track about 1,200 yards south of the station gave no hostile sound as the soldiers advanced and peacefully climbed over it. Down in the depression on each side ran long, serpentine rifle pits, admirably designed to defeat a flanking fire. It must have taken days to dig them, and yet there wasn't a shot fired from them.

Colonel Funston, with four companies of Kansas men, were in advance, and the rest of the brigade was crossing the bridge some distance below. Funston pushed on through a strip of bamboo trees and, keeping his men down behind the high roadbed of the railway on the left side, got the command up by the freighthouse, where his position covered a low line of earthworks 600 yards off to the right. There was no firing at the time. Some of the soldiers had come up the railway from the rear and were hunting a well among the nipa houses where drinking water could be had. They branched off along the road running across the track to the right and succeeded in finding a good well at the farther edge of the trees. Ten or 15 were clustered there filling their canteens and drinking away the thirst that by this time was nearly maddening. Caution and fear of bullets were lost in their eagerness to quench their thirst, and the group carelessly exposed at the well drew a sudden and totally unexpected fire from the trenches in the field near by.

At the first indication that the trench was occupied Colonel Funston began firing steady volleys along its shallow rim. Several of the men near the well edged over and joined the firing party at the freighthouse, but it was remarkable to see that even under the fierce fire of the insurgents other soldiers came into the bullet zone to get the drink of water that they craved so keenly. For nearly half an hour the fight raged savagely. General MacArthur was moving up more troops as quickly as possible, and General Wheaton and his staff had reached the position held by Funston. There was no way of knowing how many insurgents were behind the trench or what forces the woods beyond might conceal. Colonel Funston was shot through the left hand at this time and was suffering much from the wound. Then in the heat of the action occurred one of those picturesque charges which are rarely seen outside of paintings—a gallant rush, which proved to be one of the most dashing and thrilling incidents of the campaign.

General Wheaton whipped out his revolver, and, waving it above his head, yelled in that thunderous voice of his, "Come on, boys; follow me!" and away he went in a mad rush out into the bullet swept field. Hot after him, racing in a frenzy of enthusiasm, came his staff and Colonel Funston and every one of the men within four Kansas companies. Out from the well ran the soldiers who had been crouching behind the little protected places, and the field was a wild confusion of flying figures. The men were shooting as they ran and cheering as they shot. Down across the plowed field they charged, yelling like demons, with Wheaton on ahead and Funston, with his hand in a rough sling, coming hot behind.

It appeared that the insurgents would never begin to run, for as the line of yelling Kansans came down on them they stuck to their trench with the desperate courage of men who fight with certain death coming like a whirlwind to strike them down. They held tight until our soldiers were within 200 yards of the trench, and then terror overtook them and they tried to flee. Their firing had slackened until only a few shots were sent back as they ran. One native paused to shoot, and a Kansas man drew a bead on him and shot him down. The American officers were using their revolvers, and we could see the rebels dropping. Most of them reached the woods beyond, but behind the trench and on the upward slope on the other side there were 13 dead ones left as silent testimony to our soldiers' marksmanship. Many were found wounded and were afterward taken up to the freighthouse for treatment. Less than ten Americans were wounded, and only two were killed. That action ended the advance for the day.

One of the most important and necessary components of an invading army is the corps of scouts. Major Bell is the chief of the scouts in General MacArthur's division. The part he plays in the great military machine is to go on ahead of the army until he is shot at or until he sees the enemy established in their defenses. Then he returns with his report and is generally sent with the advancing troops to point out where caution is to be observed and where the men must expect the fighting to begin.

San Fernando was supposed to be very strongly defended. The meager information that could be obtained led General MacArthur to expect a stiff fight before it could be taken. There were rumors of artillery being placed to command the roads leading to it and others to the effect that several thousand riflemen were to make a desperate stand to prevent the Americans taking the city. It was the largest and finest city north of Manila, the seat of the Filipino government, and the natural assumption was that the insurgents could not afford to lose it on account of its sentimental significance. On the night of May 4 it was announced at the general headquarters that no movement would be made on the city until the morning of May 6. General MacArthur ordered Major Bell to take a small scouting party the following morning, the 5th, and, if possible, determine how great a force was in San Fernando and what disposition was made of it. At 6 o'clock the start was made. Major Bell, Lieutenant Mead, 15 soldiers and 3 correspondents, Bass, Keen and myself, composed the party. The major, the lieutenant and an orderly were mounted, but the remaining members were on foot. When the party, numbering 20, 15 armed with Krag-Jorgensens and the rest with revolvers, got as far as the American outposts, a halt was made. Thenceforth extreme caution was necessary. First, the leaders directed half the soldiers to move slowly forward in the shelter of the trees, along one side of the road and the other half to take a similar position on the other side.

"Now, you men must understand me. I don't want a shot fired. If they fire on us get in what protection you can, and don't, under any circumstances, fire unless you simply have to. I don't want the insurgents to see us, either. Keep in the shadow of those trees, and if you have to get into the road be careful to keep out of the center. Now, I'm going forward. We'll leave these three horses with you," indicating the correspondents, "for we must go on ahead. You bring them on about 200 yards to our rear; for if anybody is wounded we'll have to use a horse to get him to the rear. You must observe the strictest caution and keep as close into the trees as you can."

After these businesslike preparations the men disappeared in the trees lining the road and moved on ahead. A slight bend presently revealed a long, straight stretch into the city of San Fernando. About three-quarters of a mile down this stretch was a very heavy breastwork crossing the road, and behind it were some nipa houses. Part of the distance was well lined with scrubby trees, which concealed the members of our party from view. Occasionally Major Bell was observed a short distance ahead peering through the leaves and fixing his fieldglasses on the breastwork ahead. There was no sign of life about it.

Our party would advance a hundred yards, then pause for nearly 15 minutes with glasses studying every clump of bushes and everything ahead that could conceal a man. By degrees the scouts worked their way up to within 300 yards of the breastworks, where an open field was reached, and consequently no further advance could be made undiscovered. The horses were tied in a clump of bushes, and we edged up to the limit of the trees. At this time an insurgent officer was seen riding down the road leading from San Fernando to the breastworks, the extension of which we were on. He seemed unconscious of the nearness of our party and made no attempt at concealment. As he reached the breastworks he paused, and several figures were seen talking to him. Then he deliberately rode back toward San Fernando. After some minutes Major Bell showed himself in the road, feeling that at such short range the insurgents would be tempted to fire. But there wasn't a sound, and, aside from our party, not a human being could be seen.

The city of San Fernando, scarcely one-third of a mile away, was peaceful and quiet. Once more Major Bell walked across the road in full view, and Mead leisurely followed him. Several times this was repeated, but it drew no hostile shot from the fortresslike warehouses or the heavy breastwork just ahead. Little by little the scouts edged down the side of the road. Presently we were all out in the little open field in front of the breastworks. The leaders were within 100 yards of it, and the rest were scattered in a long, loose string behind. Every man was avoiding getting bunched with the others. Now the distance shrank to 50 yards, and still no sign. By this time it was reasonably certain that the breastwork had been abandoned. Twenty-five yards, ten yards, and then the foremost men climbed up and over. There wasn't a soul in sight, for the men we had seen had quietly crept off to the rear. The splendid defense, a high bank of earth, with bamboo loopholes for hundreds of men, had been completely abandoned.

GILLMORE'S DIARY.

Extracts From It Give an Account of the Lieutenant's Imprisonment.

At the fall of the last Filipino capital, San Isidro, when Colonel Summers entered the city with the Oregon and Minnesota troops, Sergeant Black and Corporal Harding of Company I, with a squad of Oregon and Minnesota troops, entered the prison and found a cipher message written on the wall by Lieutenant Gillmore of the Yorktown stating in what part of the cell under the stone floor would be found a letter written by himself and a diary, says the New York Herald.

There was no signature to the diary, as it was broken off abruptly in the middle of a sentence. Several pages of the first part of the diary were missing. It is evident they referred to the writer's life from his capture on Jan. 27 to March 28, when the city of Malolos was taken by the Americans. The following are extracts from the diary without date:

"Men, women and children all fleeing from the advancing Americans. A couple of hours' march brought us to Quinga, where all the Spaniards and ourselves stopped for a rest in a convent. At 4 in the morning we were on the march again. About four hours' march brought us to the bank of a large river, and here we were ferried across in a large canoe. On the other side lay Balinao, our resting place for the night. We were taken into a convent and put into a room about 6 by 10, with nothing to sleep on but the floor and a litter covered with blood. The sergeant of the guard was a young Spaniard, and he tried to make it as easy as possible for us, bringing us some rice and fish to eat.

"We saw many wounded here from the front. Next morning we were awakened by the natives throwing stones through the windows at us to see us move. Hundreds came to gaze at us through the door, including many priests. At about 9 o'clock we were started on the march again without breakfast. Many of the Spaniards were so sick that they could hardly walk, but the native guards struck them with their guns to make them move faster, shouting "Sigce!" all the time. That word I shall never forget, for it rang continually in my ears, sigce, sigce, sigce, like a man driving cattle. We were in a better condition than the Spaniards, so they put us ahead, but every once in awhile we had to stop and wait for the cazaderos. Eleven months of imprisonment, hunger and hard treatment had left them in poor condition to march on a dusty road in the broiling sun. A three hours' march brought us to San Rafael, right in the foothills. They fed us here on dry rice without salt or anything else."

Sufferings of the prisoners from hunger on the march northward to San Ardo, where they heard of a five days' armistice from some Spaniards, who gave them two silver dollars, are also recorded in the diary, which ends:

"The five days passed slowly and heavily, although we had plenty to eat, all donations of the Spaniards, except four motas a day each and two measures of rice apiece given by the government. This alone would just about have kept body and soul together. We sang songs together to show that we were in good spirits."

Rothschild's Straw Plug Hat.

The other night the Hon. Walter Rothschild made his appearance crowned with a hat the like of which had never before been seen at Westminster, says the Westminster Gazette. The shape was that of the ordinary tall silk hat, but the material was light colored plaited straw, and, although his fellow members looked a little surprised at the innovation, envy of the coolness of the headgear was quite as strong as astonishment at the new member's courage.

Not a Laugh For Five Years.

The extremity of Dreyfus' misery could not be more forcibly told than by the statement that he has just laughed for the first time in five years. We do not often stop to think of the meaning and importance of laughter, but the mere conception of the state of mind which makes laughter impossible is horrible.—Providence Journal.

Outclassed.

She looks at me with proud disdain; I claim her love no more;
I ride the same old wheel that I have ridden heretofore;
She used to cheer me with her laugh as we together sped
Along the crowded boulevard, with heaven just ahead.

We used to ride off side by side along the shaded ways
That led us through the parks, and oft she gave me words of praise,
And every tree was blest that we sat 'neath in shine or rain,
And every road on which we sped became a lovers' lane.

The joy I had is gone! She smiles on some one else today!
I still ride forth upon my wheel, but hers is stored away;
I saw her yesterday beside a happy looking chap.
I had a puncture! They were perched upon an autotrap!

Any Time You Want at the Pole.

Those who are conversant with the use of globes know that all the meridians of longitude starting from the equator converge toward and meet at the pole. They know, too, that longitude signifies time, and that difference of longitude is difference in time. They know very well that when it is noon in London it is about 7 o'clock in the morning in Boston, and that when it is noon in San Francisco it is about a quarter past 3 in the afternoon in New York.

Now, as the meridian of London extends to the north pole, it necessarily ensues that when it is noon in the English capital it must also be noon at the north pole. In a similar manner when it is noon at Boston, or in San Francisco, or at Peking, or any other place situated in the northern hemisphere, it follows that it must also be noon at the pole, because all the meridians of those places unite at the north pole. Therefore it is noon all day long at the pole.

Thus there is an entire absence of time at the pole. But it would be just as correct to say that it is a place where there is a preponderance of time, for it is practically any time of day during the whole 24 hours, or indeed through the year. In fact, a resident at the north pole could make it any time of day he might choose to select, with the consciousness that it would be the right time.—Youth's Companion.

A Woman's Whim.

She was a woman who made a practice of being always amiable to the clerks in the shops, and there was one dry goods shop where she had traded for many years, and the clerks were like old friends. But there were some business changes, and a new firm made offers to the clerks who had been so long with the old firm that the woman had patronized, and they, almost to a man and woman, left. The lifelong patron of the shop was much incensed at this. It was not fair or right, she said, and in fact almost dishonorable.

So one day when she made a first visit to the new shop one of the old clerks who knew her well stepped forward to speak to her after the old cordial fashion. But, no, this mildest mannered of women turned her head away with a cold stare and passed on without recognition. She could not be cordial to any one who had acted so dishonorably. No explanation is offered of why she herself was in the new shop. It may have been just out of curiosity. Of course one can shop where one pleases.—New York Times.

A Lucky Bit of Tin.

Telling of a narrow escape from death which he had recently experienced, a railroad switchman said:

"I was leaning up against the end of that blue box car over there, thinking of what I was going to have for dinner, when I thought I saw a silver dollar lying in the street about ten feet away from me.

"I knew there was a shifter on the same track, but I thought it was down on the wharf at that time. I hadn't more than stepped away from the end of that car when the shifter bunted into it and drove it ahead about 20 feet. Say, suppose I hadn't seen that silver dollar and started for it. Where would I have been now? Yes, a man that is working around the cars has got to pay strict attention to business.

"Oh, I forgot to tell you that that silver dollar was only a round piece of tin, but it served its purpose just as well as the real thing could have done. I'm going to wear it on my watch chain for a charm. It ought to be better than a rabbit's foot."—Portland Express.

Eccentric Bride.

In a little country cottage near San Francisco an eccentric young heiress is spending the queerest honeymoon in the world. Helen K. Wilder of Honolulu always declared that when she should get married she would spend her honeymoon alone, says the New York World. A few weeks ago she married H. J. Craft in Honolulu and told him he had given her the opportunity to carry out her wish. The next day she sailed alone to San Francisco. She is now waiting for the month to elapse before going back to take up her wifely duties in Hawaii.

FOUR WERE ITALIAN CITIZENS.

Belief of Italian Officials, Though Lynchings Investigation Was Not Finished.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 2.—Several official reports received here showed that the Italian officials on the scene of the Louisiana lynchings believed that four out of the five men lynched were Italian citizens in the fullest sense. The reports were not final. Marquis Romano of the Italian embassy started to Louisiana as consul to New Orleans owing to the absence of the consul on leave, and in that capacity he will go to Tellulah and make a careful investigation.

The Italian authorities also took note of the statement attributed to Dr. Hodges, whose assault led up to the lynching. This states that after the assault he walked away, indicating that the offense was not of a character to warrant the lynching of five persons.

WINE OF CARDUI

A SURE MEDICINE.

I have been suffering from female weakness for four years, and have taken many medicines, but Wine of Cardui and Black-Draught have done more for me than anything else.

MRS. CAROLINE EVANS.

McLREE'S
Wine of Cardui

It is a mistake to take any and every kind of medicine when you are sick. There is danger in it. Most of the so-called cures for "female weakness" do nothing more than deaden the pain temporarily, and when the effect wears away the patient is weaker and sicker than before. It is never wise to take chances. You have only one life, and that is dear and precious. If you have any pain, ache, disorder or weakness in the feminine organs, nothing will help you like Wine of Cardui. It helps do away with morning sickness during the early stages of pregnancy, and modifies the pains of childbirth; recovery is rapid and future health is assured. The Wine is purely vegetable, being made of herbs whose medicinal properties act directly upon the organs of womanhood. It is a long-tried remedy, and has many years of success behind it. It is sure. Why take a chance medicine when you can get a sure medicine?
